U.N. Summit Meeting Offer Made By Ike... MOSCOW GETS BLUNT NOTE

Senate OKs Trade Bill

3-Year Extension Passed
After Plan Re-Shaped
Toward Ike View

Washington (AP)—The Senate Tuesday night passed a bill extending the reciprocal trade program 3 years, after re-shaping it more to the liking of President Eisenhower.

The vote was 72-16.

The extension voted is not as long as Eisenhower asked, —he wanted 5 years—and there are other provisions objected to by the administration.

Missile Site Land Study Completed

Location 10-15 Miles From Offutt Runways

By Don Walton

Topographic surveys and sub-surface explorations of land to be used for the intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) launching installation near Offutt Air Force Base have been completed, an Army Corps of Engineers spokesman revealed Tuesday.

"Preliminary investigations are completed," a high official told The Star by telephone from Omaha.

This clears the way for construction to begin on the proposed $25-$35 million missile base.

Air Force officials earlier announced construction of the installation would probably begin in the late summer or early fall, with completion expected to take 15 to 18 months.

Construction has not yet begun, the Corps of Engineers official said. The Corps, which will supervise construction, has not yet received any "further directive" since the preliminary investigative work was completed, he said.

Meanwhile, in Washington it was revealed that launching sites for the Nebraska base will be spotted 10 to 15 miles from Offutt's runway area.

Malcolm A. MacIntyre, undersecretary of the Air Force, outlined this radius to a recent closed door hearing of the House Appropriations Committee, according to testimony released Tuesday, the Associated Press reported.

MacIntyre did not list the number of such sites but reports indicate there will be about 6 of them.

Reports in Nebraska and Washington have indicated that the installation may utilize the Mead Ordnance Plant near Wahoo, former Martin bomber plant facilities at Offutt and a 1,000-acre farm tract near Arlington.

The announcement may have ruled out speculation that the Mead Ordnance Plant will be used. The plant is nearly 30 miles from Offutt.

The Martin plant would probably be used for storage, officials have indicated.

Construction will require technical design under the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division at Ingleside, Calif.

MacIntyre revealed that "the actual sites of the Atlas missiles are going to be 10 to 15 miles away from the site of the actual Offutt runway so that it creates a separate target."

His comment followed a question by Rep. Robert Sikes (D-Fla.) as to why the Air Force in building new facilities at individual bases didn't disperse them to a greater extent "so that you do not have quite as attractive a target."

But the President won a smashing victory in a 63-27 vote to knock out an amendment which would have curbed his powers over tariffs and trade.

Senate supporters of the President on the legislation said the remaining provisions he dislikes could be altered considerably in conference with the House.

The House on June 11 passed a bill which met practically all of the administration's specifications. The lopsidedness of the vote rejecting the amendment to curb the President's tariff-making powers may have been caused in part by the Middle East crisis.

Join Vote

Such Democrats as Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Senate's majority leader, and Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, its Finance Committee chairman, joined in handing this victory to the Eisenhower administration.

However, there were more Republicans against the amendment than there were Democrats combined in support of it.

The division: 36 Republicans and 27 Democrats to strike it from the bill; 9 Republicans and 18 Democrats to keep it in.

This lineup varied from the historical one. In the past the matter of granting tariff-making powers to the President has consistently drawn more Democratic support than Republican.

This vote was a defeat for those who contend some American industries need more protection from the competition of foreign goods. The losing cause was led by Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla.), who had persuaded Byrd's committee to adopt the amendment.

MODERATE TEMPS SEEN

Nebraskans can expect more of the moderate weather they enjoyed Tuesday as the Weather Bureau predicts temperatures to remain in the 80s.

Widely scattered thunderstorms are forecast for Wednesday afternoon and night.

A pilot reported spotting a funnel cloud about 2 miles northeast of Clay Center at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday. However, a check of the area failed to reveal that the funnel touched the ground although the threatening clouds kept Clay County residents on the alert watching the skies.

Clay Center received about half an inch of rain with a small amount of hail.

Lincoln reported a high of 80 degrees Tuesday with a low of 58. The state high was 85 reported at Chadron.

Still running above bankfull Tuesday was the Big Blue River in the Crete area where it was expected to crest about 2 feet above bankfull. The river is reported to be well down from Beatrice downstream.

The Discussion's On The Middle East

Arab NU Students See Iraq Revolt As Improving Relations With U.S.

By Jack Pollock

In their first interview since the revolution in Iraq—and the subsequent sending of American troops to Lebanon—Arab students attending the University of Nebraska Tuesday said they believed relations with the West would "improve, not deteriorate" as a result of the Iraq change.

Four Arab students—2 from Iraq and one each from Syria and Jordan—agreed, however, that "the sending of American troops to Lebanon has hurt the prestige of America in the eyes of the Arab-speaking people."

University of Nebraska graduate Hamid Al-gharr and NU graduate student Hadi Abbas Ali, both of Baghdad, Iraq, said a revolution of some type had been "expected—and hoped for—for a long, long time."

Ali Hussen Ali of Jordan pointed out that "there are 2 methods of change in government—evolution and revolution. When you do not have the first, eventually you will have the latter."

Abdul Rahim of Syria described Iraq's change of government as a nationalistic movement that dates back a century.

100 Years Ago

It did not start with Nasser, he said. It started 100 years ago with Arab domination by the Turks. Nationalism started with one ideal in mind, the maintenance of Arab freedom.

After WW I another ideal was added, unity of the Arab world after having been divided by England and France. Later a third ideal was added, he said, freedom from internal feudal oppression and external colonial domination.

'No Freedom'

Abbas Ali described the Iraqi government under young King Faisal as a government without freedom—one with "no press freedom, no political parties and no real elections."

What will be the attitude of the new government toward the West? The answer, Abbas Ali says, is "to ease."

"It will be the same relationship, if not better."

Hussen Ali from Jordan pointed out that the new Iraqi government has already declared its allegiance—and that all former treaties, pacts and agreements with the West will be respected.

Not Anti-West

The change in Iraq, contrary to the belief of many Americans, he said, was not an anti-West move; it was an internal affair for a better government.

U.S. foreign aid will now reach the common man—educationally and economically, Hussen Ali said. The people will benefit, not a few in government—and the people will gain respect for the U.S.

It is up to the United States, the 4 agreed, whether the U.S. will go along with the new government of the people.

Ties Strong

Arab ties with the West are strong. In fact, right now some 4,000 Arab students are studying in the U.S. alone.

The 4 were critical of the sending of American troops to Lebanon. They compared it to Eisenhower's "criticisms of England, France and Israel for the landing of troops in the Suez in 1956."

"Russia," Rahim said, "is jubilant over the U.S. actions, although screaming in the United Nations. They believe that the U.S. is losing the hearts of the (Arab) people the Soviet Union is gaining."

The reasons the U.S. has lost respect in the Middle East is because, by the sending of American troops to Lebanon, the U.S. is following the beckoning of one ruler—and not the wishes of the people of that nation, Rahim stated.

Man In Driver's Seat Of Runaway Truck Dies

Boy Was Injured When Struck By Vehicle Of Frank Scodris

The man behind the wheel of a runaway truck that injured a boy near 27th and Leighton July 1 died Tuesday. He was Frank Scodris, 57, of 1101 Saunders.

Witness to the accident said the truck appeared to be driverless as it wandered across the center line of the street and up into a lot where the boy was standing with his back to the oncoming vehicle.

A bystander jumped into the truck after it struck the lad and applied the brakes to stop it. It was then that Mr. Scodris was found slumped over the wheel in a pool of blood.

His attending physician said Tuesday night that the cause of death will not be known until a post mortem Wednesday.

Born in Beatrice, he had resided in Lincoln since 1904. He was a trucker.

Surviving are his wife, Eva; daughters, Mrs. Evelyn Keys of Los Angeles, Mrs. Lola Hoffman and Mrs. Erma Hiskey, both of Lincoln; sons, Wallace (Tom), Jack and Frank Jr., all of Lincoln; Roger of Camp Pendleton, Calif.; mother, Mrs. Lillie Scodris; sisters, Mrs. Harriet Lundy and Mrs. Iona Handy, both of Lincoln; brothers, Dan of Los Angeles, Ivan of San Francisco, and Perry of Portland, Ore.; and 18 grandchildren.

2 Inmates Flee Pen Farm As Reformatory Escapees Caught

A pair of inmates escaped from the Nebraska Penitentiary dairy farm Tuesday afternoon shortly after 2 escapees from the Me's Reformatory were apprehended.

According to penitentiary officials Donald Yates, 26 and John Bauxbaum, 36, escaped from the dairy farm at about 3:30 p.m.

Yates, who was serving a 4-year sentence for statutory rape, was identified as being white, weighing 140 lbs., 5 feet-5 inches tall, with blue eyes, brown hair, and a ruddy complexion.

Bauxbaum, serving 3 to 5 years on a non-support charge, is white, 35, weighing 120 lbs. and is 5 feet 4½ inches tall. He has brown hair and hazel eyes, according to authorities.

Yates, who was sentenced from Custer Co., is from Broken Bow. Bauxbaum is from Bayard.

Khrushchev's Reply In Doubt

BRITAIN'S NOTE FAR SOFTER THAN AMERICA'S;
PREMIER DE GAULLE HOLDS BACK

Washington (AP)—President Eisenhower and Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan offered Tuesday night to discuss the Middle East crisis with Russia's Premier Khrushchev at a summit meeting of the United Nations Security Council.

But France's Premier de Gaulle held back, proposing another time and place. He said the United Nations headquarters in New York lacks the calm and serenity needed for such an emergency meeting.

What Khrushchev would say remained uncertain. He had suggested a session at Geneva or anywhere else if Geneva was unsatisfactory to the West.

The 3 Western allies split publicly in replying to Khrushchev's call for an immediate 5-nation conference. The Soviet leader himself again demanded swift withdrawal of U.S. - British forces sent to Lebanon and Jordan to bolster pro-Western governments there.

These developments came during a day of fast-moving

OPPOSITION

London (AP)—The Soviet government newspaper expressed opposition to the western proposal that a summit conference on the Middle East be held within the U. N. Security Council.

diplomatic jockeying in the four capitals:

WASHINGTON—Eisenhower flung back at Khrushchev his accusation that the United States and Britain have gravely endangered world peace. In a bitterly worded note, he challenged Khrushchev to complain personally to the 11-nation United Nations Security Council.

"If such a meeting were genuinely desired, the United States would join in following that orderly procedure," Eisenhower said.

Eisenhower made no promise to meet face-to-face with Khrushchev. He noted tersely council members could be represented by chiefs of government and foreign ministers. But responsible officials thought he couldn't do anything but show up if Khrushchev and other heads of government did.

LONDON—In a far softer reply that went further than Eisenhower's, Macmillan formally suggested a summit level meeting of the U.N. Security Council. Macmillan even set forth some ground rules — saying the meeting should seek to discuss the problems and not vote on any

Crisis Fading—Rebel

...Pullout Seen

Beirut, Lebanon (AP)—A rebel leader predicted Tuesday that U.S. Marines and paratroopers will be going back to their ships and bases soon because the Middle East crisis over Iraq has about passed.

Hussein Oweini, a former Premier and leader of the National Front, made the prediction as Robert Murphy, President Eisenhower's special representative, sounded varied political elements in search of a compromise in Lebanon's tangled presidential succession. This is the cause of the 74-day-old rebellion. One of the men Murphy talked to is Oweini.

But the American troops were still in the midst of a lot of shooting.

A Marine was killed early Tuesday, but the bullet came from one of his own sentries. This was the second American killed in Lebanon. A Navy fighter pilot was killed Sunday in the crash of his plane.

Trip Flares

An officer said the Marine had been laying trip flares in front of an outpost near the airport and failed to answer challenges. The flares, which illuminate a wide area, are set off by trip wires.

The Defense Department identified the victim of the accidental shooting as Pfc. Scott B. Sanborn, 18, of Fairfield, Conn.

Oweini said he never believed the 9,400 Marines and paratroopers here were sent because of the Lebanese crisis "but because of the trouble in Iraq and the possibility of intervening there."

"The situation in Iraq now is stabilizing," he said, "and the West realizes it will not be necessary to send its troops to Baghdad. Now all we need is a satisfactory formula for taking them out of Lebanon."

No Intervention

His estimate of the situation in Iraq was made as London and Washington pronouncements indicated there was little likelihood of intervention against the rebels who overthrew the pro-western Baghdad government.

On the contrary, London reports said Britain and the United States were considering recognizing the new Baghdad government.

Oweini indicated any solution of Lebanon's presidential question that was not satisfactory to the opposition would be no solution at all. He said the rebels would have to form a government of their own if they were "driven into a corner."

Today's Chuckle

"Well, then," demanded the baby stork, "who DID bring me?"

specific resolution unless all agreed in advance.

"In other words, the object would be to reach fruitful agreements rather than to register differences by votes," he wrote Khrushchev. "I hope this spirit will prevail."

"I would certainly be ready to attend such a meeting, if you would go, and I take it from the terms of your message that you would . . . I should certainly be glad to explain to you face-to-face how Her Majesty's government view the problems which beset the area."

PARIS—Premier de Gaulle said he was ready to work out with other powers a suitable time and place for a summit conference. But he objected to convening such a parley now at the U.N. on the grounds that it lacks the calm

Nikita Warns West

'Nationalism Can Crush' U.S.

Moscow (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev warned the United States and Britain Tuesday night that they can be crushed in a rising tide of Arab nationalism if they do not pull troops out of Lebanon and Jordan.

"The United States and Britain," Khrushchev said in a free-swinging speech at the Polish Embassy, "must show wisdom and understanding of the times and pull their troops out of Lebanon and Jordan."

"The ice of the ages is moving, it is breaking up and crushing everything in its path, all the colonial and imperialist policies of old."

"Let the imperialist beware," Khrushchev said waving his arms exuberantly, "we are revolutionaries. We are Marxists and we are delighted when the colonial nations raise up and cast off their chains."

No Threat

Khrushchev did not threaten the West directly. He did not say the Soviet Union would intervene in the Middle East or that the United States and Britain would be crushed by Soviet arms.

But his speech left no doubt the Kremlin ranged itself, in sympathy at least, 100% alongside the nations raising the banner of Arab nationalism in the Middle East.

JAPANESE PEACE PLAN IS KILLED

...Council Adjourns

United Nations, N.Y. (P)—The Soviet Union killed a Japanese Middle East peace proposal Tuesday by casting its 85th Security Council veto.

Then the council, mindful of high level negotiations for a Security Council summit conference, voted to adjourn without setting any definite time for another meeting.

The Council gave up attempts on the Middle East crisis as President Eisenhower, bowing to British pressure, agreed to a Council summit meeting. It could bring Eisenhower face-to-face with Soviet Premier Khrushchev in New York.

Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld warned that "time is of the essence" in the explosive Middle East crisis. He said steps would be taken by him at once to enlarge the U.N. observer group in Lebanon.

This was a main part of the Japanese plan, aimed at paving the way for the United States to withdraw its troops from that strife-torn country.

Dag Plans To Act

U.N. sources said Hammarskjöld planned to expand the U.N. observer group in Lebanon to 200 officers and 1,000 enlisted men. The latter would act as ground forces in patrolling the Lebanese frontier in order to keep aid from President Nasser's United Arab Republic from reaching Lebanese rebels.

Hammarskjöld declined to tell the Council his exact plans, but said he was sure they would be recognized as "in the best interest of the U.N. and therefore of the cause of peace."

He asserted that whatever takes place in the Council "there is need for practical steps to be taken without delay." He said he would act to help prevent a further deterioration in the Middle East, "and to assist in finding a roadway from the dangerous point at which we find ourselves."

It Could Help, Lodge Says
U.S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge said an increase in size of the observer group could help lead to eventual withdrawal of the U.S. forces. He added that Lebanon would be consulted before any withdrawal.

The Japanese compromise was approved by all members of the Council except the Soviet Union. Under Council procedure that spelled doom for the resolution hammered out after long hours of private consultations.

Soviet attempts to rewrite the proposal to include condemnation of U.S. action in sending troops to Lebanon were beaten decisively.

The Soviet amendments were rejected 8-1 with 2 abstentions. The United States, Britain, China, France, Canada, Panama, Colombia, and Iraq were opposed. Sweden and Japan abstained.

BLUNT NOTE SENT TO KHRUSHCHEV

and serene atmosphere he wants for such talks.

MOSCOW — Khrushchev, in a free-swinging speech at the Polish Embassy, said the United States and Britain could be crushed in a rising tide of Arab nationalism unless they pull their troops out of the Middle East.

He gave no clue about whether he would accept a U.N. summit meeting as a substitute for his proposal for an immediate meeting of the heads of state from the United States, Russia, Britain, France and India, together with U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld.

Clearly Reluctant
Eisenhower's offer to meet with Khrushchev was clearly a reluctant one, influenced by public pressure from Macmillan some 6 hours earlier.

In contrast to Macmillan's language, Eisenhower's letter constituted a challenge rather than an invitation to Khrushchev. Even this was firm up at the last minute after Macmillan insisted through diplomatic channels that the Western reply include a specific offer rather than an indirect bid favored by Eisenhower.

Authoritative officials said Eisenhower reluctantly would attend such a session if Khrushchev and Macmillan show up, even though far from convinced it would help ease tensions.

Eisenhower coupled his bid to Khrushchev with some of the harshest language he has hurled at the Soviet Union in recent months.

It is Russia's actions, not those of the United States and Britain, he said, that are keeping the world in turmoil. The President defended Anglo-American troop landings in Jordan and Lebanon as aimed at helping these Mid-East countries survive a campaign of murder violence and terrorism.

In justifying the U.S. military move into Lebanon, Eisenhower said bluntly: "The real danger of war would come if one small nation after another were to be engulfed by expansionist and aggressive forces supported by the Soviet Union."

The White House made public Eisenhower's reply at the same time Secretary of State Dulles was handing it to Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov.

Menshikov, on leaving the State Department, refused to predict whether Khrushchev would accept. "That I don't know," he said with a shrug.

Action Studied On Omaha Pharmacists

State Health Director E. A. Rogers late Tuesday took under advisement license revocation or suspension charges filed against 2 Omaha pharmacists.

Rogers' action grew out of Tuesday hearings held for druggists Fred H. Rathgeber, pharmacy owner, and Clarence J. Meany, part-time employee of Rathgeber.

Earlier, Attorney General Clarence S. Beck had charged the 2 men with being "guilty of unprofessional and dishonorable conduct in that they sold and dispensed drugs without a physician's prescription," Rogers said.

Sold Nembutal
The health director said that between May 29 and July 10 of last year, the 2 pharmacists sold Omaha's resident federal food and drug inspector a total of 136 nembutal capsules.

As a result of the sale, both Rathgeber and Meany faced federal charges and were given jury trial in U.S. District Court at Omaha in April of this year, Rogers said.

The jury acquitted both men of the federal charges.

Rogers quoted Rathgeber and Meany as admitting during Tuesday's hearing that they sold the nembutal pills to Inspector Thomas M. Rice, but that they did it "out of the kindness of their hearts rather than for monetary gain."

Woman Is Charged In Bank Fraud

McCook Case Linked To Man Held Here

Lincoln Star Special

Denver, Colo. — Shirley A. Clark, 31, accused on a federal complaint with attempting to defraud the First National Bank of McCook, Neb., through a $23,305 false entry, was released on bond Tuesday.

The former McCook bank employee was arrested at her apartment here by FBI agents. She was released on $2,500 bond posted by her father following hearing before U.S. Commissioner Howard Erickson.

Miss Clark, employed by the McCook bank until April of this year, was currently working in a Denver bank.

Federal authorities said the cases against Miss Clark and Max Billesbach, 46, of McCook are linked. Billesbach, former cashier for 24 years, is charged with embezzling $7,154.51 from the bank.

Helped 'Cover'

Investigation of the bank's books is continuing, but authorities said Miss Clark "apparently helped cover" for Billesbach in some of the bank manipulations.

The operation is suspected to have covered a period of 10 years, according to one source.

He said Billesbach has indicated the money was spent for new cars, and to pay gambling debts.

Officials of the First National Bank of McCook have declined comment on either case. The federal complaint against Miss Clark alleges the $23,305 false entry was made Aug. 5, 1957.

Hearing Postponed

Billesbach was to have appeared Tuesday before U.S. Commissioner C. M. Pierson in Lincoln in connection with the posting of a $20,000 bond for his release from federal custody.

Federal officials said the hearing would be held when Asst. U.S. Atty. Dean Wallace returns to Lincoln from Denver on Friday.

Billesbach is being held in the Lincoln city jail awaiting further federal action.

Manned Balloon Flight To 16-Mile Altitude Delayed

Minneapolis (P)—A high altitude manned balloon launching set for the Crosby, Minn., area Wednesday has been postponed for one day.

The Office of Naval Research said late Tuesday night that a cold front moving into the area from the west and bringing possible showers and turbulent weather conditions was the reason for the 24-hour delay.

The flight will be a test for a forthcoming "Project Mars" flight in November when a Johns Hopkins University astronomer will make spectrographic photographs of the atmosphere of Mars through a powerful telescope.

NORTH BEND MAN KILLED

North Bend, Neb. (P)—Francis Emanuel, 52, of North Bend, was killed Tuesday night when his car and one driven by Ben Spies, North Bend, collided at a county road intersection 2 miles north and a half mile west of North Bend.

Emanuel was crushed when his car upset and he was pinned in the vehicle.

Spies, 67, his wife, Tillie, 67, and Jacqueline Groetke, 10, a granddaughter, and Patrick, 4, and Kenneth Emanuel, 9, children of Herman Emanuel of West Point, and nephews of Francis Emanuel, were hospitalized at Fremont.

Francis Emanuel was the father of Dennis Emanuel, former Nebraska football player. The death brought the 1958 traffic toll to 166 compared to 144 on July 22 of 1957.

Foundation To Continue Polio Care

Nebraska polio victims were assured Tuesday that the newly organized National Foundation would continue to care for them although the foundation will now also handle research and care of other diseases.

Clinton Belknap, Nebraska infantile paralysis representative, said the organization will go right along in its work with polio sufferers.

The National Foundation, an expansion of the foundation for infantile paralysis, will extend its activities to take in all the virus diseases, arthritis, diseases of the central nervous system and the congenital diseases known as "birth defects," Belknap said.

He cited the expansion as a natural outgrowth of the foundation's research in the polio field. "You can't just study one disease at a time."

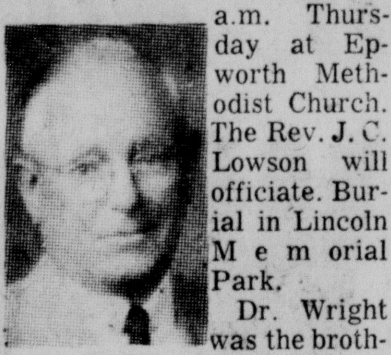

"The other diseases which the National Foundation plans to study were picked because of their close relation to polio."

Belknap expressed the opinion that many new volunteers will join in the work of the foundation because of the expansion.

The change in the areas of work covered by the new National Foundation and its organization were announced Tuesday by the National President Basil O'Connor.

Dr. Wright Rites To Be Thursday

Funeral services for Dr. Frank T. Wright, 83, a Lincoln physician for 25 years who died in Kansas City, Mo., Monday, will be at 10:30 a.m. Thursday at Epworth Methodist Church.

The Rev. J. C. Lowson will officiate. Burial in Lincoln Memorial Park.

Dr. Wright was the brother-in-law of Mrs. Etta Fager, 75, of 2314 Q, who was killed Sunday in a car-pedestrian accident at 23rd and R Streets.

Born in Valparaiso, Dr. Wright was a 1907 graduate of the Lincoln Medical College.

He practiced medicine at Davey for 4 years, at Ceresco from 1911 to 1925, and in Lincoln from 1925 to 1951.

At State Hospital

In 1951, he joined the staff of the Arizona State Hospital at Phoenix, where he spent 2 years. In 1953 he returned to Lincoln and joined the Lincoln State Hospital staff until his retirement in 1957.

He was a life member of the American and State Medical Assns., a member of the Lancaster County Medical Assn., and received a pin for 50 years of service in the medical field from the AMA.

He was a past patron of the Ceresco Order of Eastern Star a member of the Lincoln Chapter 148, OES, East Lincoln Lodge 210, AF & AM, Scottish Rite, Shrine, Epworth Methodist Church, Lincoln Optimists and a life member of the YMCA.

He is survived by a son, Willard B. of Phoenix, Ariz.; daughters, Mrs. Pauline Bennett of Burlington, Ia., and Mrs. Evonne Berger of Denver, Colo.; sisters, Mrs. Eve Austin of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. Effie Woodruff of Washington D.C., and Mrs. Coral Telford of Salem, Ill., and 4 grandchildren.

Starting Anew

Singapore (UPI) — Jerome G. Forbes said he and his wife have decided to give away their 10 children for adoption and start life all over again.

Forbes, a former clerk, said he is unemployed and ill. He said the aid he received from the Social Welfare Department in Singapore was not enough to maintain his family.

If the children are adopted, he said, he and his wife will start afresh in Ceylon.

JULY ALREADY WETTEST SINCE BACK IN 1902

With the Nebraska rain-maker still going strong, July 1958 is going down as one of the dampest on record for the capital city.

The city this month has already received 9.67 inches—the most rainfall since the era of William McKinley, when Lincoln netted a total of 11.35 inches in July 1902.

With 9 more days to go, less than one and 3/4 inches is needed to break the 56-year-old record.

The July '58 precipitation has slowed construction—and golfing—while putting the grass cutters on overtime. The 1959 amount is triple the 5-year average for 1953-57 of 3.02.

Day Beats Month

In fact, the July 10 down-pour of 2.40 inches is more than the city received during the entire months in 1953 and again in 1955. Lincoln had 1.81 inches in 1953 and .61 in 1955. Its a far cry from the soil-thirsty '30s—and especially in 1935 when the capital city recorded only .08 of an inch for the whole month, the smallest amount for Lincoln on the Weather Bureau books.

Of the first 22 days, only 6 were without rain and largest consecutive spread without rain was a 3-day period early in the month.

Here's a day-by-day breakdown of the July 1958 precipitation in Lincoln:

Parents Watch Miracle As Child's Malignant Tumor Is Disappearing

Omaha (P)—Three-year-old Michael Butler is too young to know what a miracle is. But his doctor says his prospects for a normal healthy life are nothing short of miraculous.

When Michael was 3 months old it was discovered that he was suffering from a highly malignant tumor, which spreads rapidly and usually ends in death.

"The tumor had spread from the abdomen to the liver, the bone marrow, the skull and to his eyes," the doctor said.

Then something happened. "It's one of those things that we can take very little credit for ourselves," the physician said. The tumor turned from malignant to benign and then began to disappear.

"It's just one of those circumstances that once in a great while will happen to a child. It is not unknown in medical history," he said.

Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Butler.

'Immaturity'

Washington (P)—Washington's cocktail parties, a doctor said, are a sign of social immaturity.

"The cocktail party, the use of alcohol to drug guests into unintelligent babbling, is an admission that the hostess isn't mature enough and isn't sure enough of herself to entertain her guests by such intellectual tools as good music, intelligent conversation and the like," declared Dr. Andrew C. Ivy of Chicago.

Diplomats Believe Khrushchev Will Go To U.N. Summit Meet

...Nikita Wants To See U.S.

London (P)—The big question around the world is... Will Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev go to a meeting of world leaders at the U.N. in New York? Diplomatic sources in London speculated that he would be strongly inclined to accept Prime Minister Macmillan's specific proposal for a U.N. summit meeting. Khrushchev could hold back

On the grounds that neither President Eisenhower nor French Premier de Gaulle appeared anxious to attend and that a conference without them would be a waste of time.

On the other hand, he could accept at once and thus force the President and de Gaulle to choose between appearing in New York or dramatizing the differences between their hanging back policy and Macmillan's offer to go.

A Factor

Khrushchev has long wanted to see the United States, and this desire alone would be a factor in his reckoning, according to people who profess to have an understanding of the man.

At the U.N. in New York a Soviet spokesman said Khrushchev would be willing to attend a 5-power U.N. summit meeting in New York. He made it clear he was referring to the top-level meeting proposed by Khrushchev himself last Saturday night—on his terms. This would include the heads of governments of the United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union and India, and would have U.N. chief Dag Hammarskjöld sit in.

In Washington, Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov said he didn't know whether Khrushchev would go to the U.N. for a summit meeting.

United Nations, N.Y. (P)—A Soviet spokesman said Premier Khrushchev would be willing to attend a 5-power U.N. summit meeting in New York.

Plan Praised

Washington (UPI) — Senate Republican leader William F. Knowland (Calif) praised President Eisenhower's proposal for a top-level United Nations meeting on the Mideast crisis as "strong and forthright."

Other congressional reaction to the President's reply to Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev — both Democratic and Republican — also was generally favorable.

$21,800,000 Interstate Work Here

State Engineer L. N. Röss told the Lincoln Rotary Club Tuesday that the Highway Department plans on spending about $21,800,000 on interstate work in the Lincoln area.

Röss said the 13.1 miles of the interstate highway from the Havelock interchange to the West O interchange would cost about $12,400,000, and the 3-mile connecting link between downtown Lincoln and the interstate would cost an estimated $9,400,000.

All of the estimates include interchanges, viaducts, bridges, and road separation structures.

Omaha Link By '60

The state engineer told the group he hoped they would be able to drive on the interstate from the West O interchange to Omaha by the end of 1960. Röss said the Highway Department is still suffering from a "lack of information on where, why or when the connecting interstate route from downtown Lincoln will be built."

The Highway Department favors using 9th and 10th as a one-way pair to feed traffic into the interstate route, but consulting engineers employed by the city and the University of Nebraska have indicated preference for using 7th as route to connect with the interstate.

Attendance Half Last Year's—

Cold Summer May Sink City Pools' Profit Hopes

A cool, wet summer so far has cut deeply into the use of Lincoln's 3 municipal swimming pools.

Total attendance has been only 28,133 persons as compared with 52,237 by this same time a year ago, according to City Recreation Director James Lewis.

Unless improved swimming weather improves attendance during the remainder of July and August, Lewis said the season may not make expenses.

The 1957 receipts were $16,211.22 at Muny Pool, $14,349.86 at University Place, and $15,640.31 at Irvingdale.

Individual pools registered a generous sprinkling of 1,500-plus days for attendance during 1957, but only a few such days have been recorded so far this year.

While cool, wet weather has hurt pool attendance, Lewis said the playground and recreation program has been well attended.

"If anything," he said, "it's probably up from last year. If children can't go swimming, they come to the playgrounds."

Tax Problem Grows

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Hearings before State Tax Commissioner Fred Herrington at Hastings have again pointed up the state of decay into which the tax system in Nebraska has fallen. Of the nine summoned to appear before Herrington, seven made an appearance and all of these admitted ownership of taxable stock on which no tax was being paid.

In a sense, it is unfortunate that these people were involved in this case as they may be somewhat embarrassed by it. This is unfortunate because these seven people are only a very small part of the great number of people who are in exactly the same circumstances. When all was said and done, the seven people who appeared before Herrington could do little, but admit that they were not paying all the taxes they should. But it is no secret that many other people are in exactly the same state.

As a matter of simple justice, the tax commissioner would be in error to impose a heavy fine upon these seven individuals and then go on in the same old pattern—letting others get away without paying the taxes they owe. It is hoped that, with no better plan in sight, the tax commissioner intends to press such cases as these throughout the state.

But what is going to happen if such a plan is to be placed into effect? It would take quite some time, but eventually the situation would be substantially improved. If those owning stock taxable in Nebraska knew the law was going to be enforced against them, there would be more voluntary compliance.

But in some cases, there is no doubt that more enforcement authority is needed. It would be hard for the state tax commissioner, if not impossible, to enforce the law if the individual were intent on breaking or violating it. If an individual simply refused to declare his stock holdings, the tax commissioner would have a hard time finding this information.

Thus, the hearings have been of service to the state but the action is only a beginning. At the hearing, there was some criticism of Herrington for making public the names of those who would appear before him. Reference was made to "cheap publicity."

This is about as far from the truth as one could get. For one thing, the individual who talks of cheap publicity need only be reminded that had he paid all his taxes he would not have been called before the tax commissioner. The fact that others are in violation of the law is still no excuse for one's own violation.

Rather than criticism, Herrington should be praised for attempting to improve what is a rather deplorable situation. He is about the only one in state government, aside from State Senator Terry Carpenter, who has attempted to do anything to correct tax abuses.

The tax laws are not so complicated that the average person cannot figure out what he is supposed to pay and what property he has which is exempt from taxation. Certain stock is taxable and certain stock is not but it is all spelled out clearly in the law. The trouble with the law is that it lacks means of enforcement. If it is to be enforced by way of public hearings such as the Hastings case, then the tax commissioner is going to need more help in his office than he now has.

A Simple Matter To Determine

The Hastings hearings make one wonder how long such incidents must go on before a definite tax program is embarked upon by the state. Isolated and periodic cases such as these will not cure the problem. What we need is authoritative tax leadership and this can be provided only by the governor.

Follow The Leader

Follow the leader is an exciting game for children but one which we are expected to outgrow as we take on adult responsibilities. But it is just about the kind of game proposed for educators by Dr. Galen Saylor, professor of education at the University of Nebraska.

In addressing a clinic on educational matters, Dr. Saylor stated that in planning a curriculum, educators must first discover what the public will accept and support in the education of their children. If this is done, he said, then the school system will weather any storms created by minority groups about public education.

It has been a long time since we have heard any such frank statement about the role of professional educators. And what a backward and irresponsible place Dr. Saylor has given the educator!

It is not the job of the educator to know the needs of children or the end that should be achieved in our school system. He is not to be concerned with what the child learns or whether talent is wasted or used. That is what Dr. Saylor says.

The educator is supposed to be able to tell what the parents think is good for their children. He is supposed to be able to develop a program which, regardless of its merits, is not criticized by the majority. He should readily admit that the untrained parent knows more about education and the fundamentals of teaching than the individual who has spent a lifetime preparing himself for this work and laboring in this field. This again, is as Dr. Saylor sees it.

Contrary to Dr. Saylor's view, it is the educator who should be the leader in planning a curriculum, not the parents. Likewise, it is the educator who should set the goals in our educational system, not the parents. The parents should be asking the educator what is right and wrong, not vice versa as Dr. Saylor advocates. If there are many educators who fit the pattern outlined by Dr. Saylor, the future is indeed dark and gloomy. Our schools and classrooms would be run by professional mimics, not educators in what should be the true meaning of that word.

Fair Trade Question Back

The United States has not had much success in establishing fair trade practices by law. But the prospect is alluring enough to bring forth repeated efforts and if Senators Hubert Humphrey, Minn., and William Proxmire, Wis., could have their way business would be launched under a new such venture.

They have co-sponsored a bill mainly in behalf of the drug stores that would require manufacturers to establish retail prices on their trade marked products with the prohibition against price cutting by retailers.

Despite general support by trade associations the hearings received a jolt recently when a Louisiana cut rate retailer defended his competitive trade practice by asserting his business had grown large and successful by profitable price cutting. He protested against price fixing at levels assuring profit to all kinds of retailers and asserted that it was one good way to drive buyers out of the market. Said he, "I bring buyers into the market by offering the goods they want at a price they can afford to pay."

The conflict here does not appear to be the principals of fair trade, but the incompatibility of the traditional American principle that competition and demand fixes prices and that administered prices by government interference is a form of statism that is intolerable. There doesn't seem too much of a way out of it until the country makes up its mind what it really wants. It is a case of one trying to have his cake and eat it, too.

Foreign Aid As A Whip

The other day a commentator assembled his overseas observers and treated the American people to a panel discussion having to do with Russia's rising might as an economic rival and our reverses in the field of foreign aid.

The conclusions of the observers can be left to another day, for they represented the varying opinion of individuals and were in the field of speculation. But the facts they presented were arresting.

It is surprising how little actual economic aid we are dispensing and how much we refer to as foreign aid is actually military expenditure. It is interesting to know that the observer from the Middle East could name no significant American aid project going on there although Russia is financing hospitals, schools and factories at interest rates substantially lower than ours. It was also revealing to hear described a state department policy of denying trade and aid as a discipline.

Sanctions against lesser nations are workable when there is no major rival waiting to extend relief, but in the realistic view of a Russia standing by hoping for an opportunity to get its hooks into another satellite, sanctions are as quick a way of delivering a good share of the world to Russian control as one could imagine.

As a first step to a clearer understanding of the foreign aid program the country needs an audit of exactly how much is exactly being spent that way and under what circumstances. Any sum so unrealistically handled as to aid Russia's economic world designs, of course, is too much, but the criticism of that is not in the aid principle but in the muddy thinking that channels it in a detrimental direction.

School Lunches

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced that it will support a school lunch program $10 million greater than last year. It lately set aside $93.6 millions for the purpose. Nebraska will get $840,670.

It is a useful and laudable way of administering national food surpluses and no one should object to the program's extension.

It is interesting to know that the program served 2 billion lunches last year.

"Nice, Cozy Little Bomb Shelter We Have Here"

DREW PEARSON

Better Economy Not Bullets Needed

WASHINGTON—Just one year ago, Dr. Giuseppe Pella, foreign minister of Italy, came to Washington to give John Foster Dulles a plan for the Near East. Dulles said no. If it had been adopted we would not be in the Near Eastern mess we are in today.

Dr. Pella foresaw that Nasserism would sweep all the Near East, to be followed by Communism, if the West did not help conquer the poverty, the filth, the dusty, disease-swept alleys, the contrasts between bejeweled kings and ragged fellows in the Near East. He saw what Nasser had done in dividing up the irrigated land of Egypt, once dominated by only 27 families. He saw how the new Syria had divided up the land from the old aristocracy. Both Syria and Egypt, incidentally, had followed the land reform law of little Israel which they hate, but which nevertheless helped make Nasser popular with the masses.

So the Italian foreign minister proposed that a fund for the development of underdeveloped areas be created from the Marshall Plan loans which West European nations were then due to repay the U.S.A. He proposed that the American repayments be matched by payments from European nations, and the money be spent for irrigation on the river Jordan, on the Nile, the Tigris, the Euphrates and elsewhere, to resettle Palestinian refugees and generally improve the economic-social condition of the Near East.

This, essentially, was the plan Harry Truman had been working on when he left the White House.

"The solution for the Near East," he once told me, "is not arms, but dams and more electric power and more wheat. This area used to hold 60,000,000 people in the days of the Greeks and Romans. Now it holds 25,000,000 because the Mongols knocked out the irrigation works and because these people have been too busy fighting against each other.

"We have got to teach the Arabs that they need Jewish know-how and that they all need each other. It's not easy, but with patience, leadership and a big public works program it can be done."

One political ace-in-the-hole Eisenhower has up his sleeve, if he wants to use him, is Adlai Stevenson, whom fate has put right now in Russia. Stevenson, a skilled negotiator, could be drafted as a trouble-shooter to talk to Khrushchev about a summit conference and the Near East, immediately.

Hitherto, Eisenhower has turned the cold shoulder on Truman; and up until this year, ignored Stevenson. However, Franklin Roosevelt in wartime sent Wendell Willkie, the Republican presidential candidate, on a special war mission to Moscow.

F.D.R. also invited Alf Landon, who ran against him in 1936, to serve in his wartime cabinet, and in the end appointed Col. Frank Knox, who ran for vice president, as secretary of the Navy, with Henry L. Stimson, who had served in the Taft and Hoover cabinets, as his secretary of War.

The Democrats have been among Ike's staunchest supporters in the present Near East crisis.

"At times like this it is incumbent upon all of us to forget politics and close ranks in the cause of our own national security and the collective security of the free world," said Speaker Sam Rayburn, at the secret White House meeting last week.

DORIS FLEESON

Harriman Stalls On Senate Nod

WASHINGTON—Gov. Averell Harriman of New York as of now can control the choice of a Democratic nominee for the United States Senate this fall, but he has refused to name his preference. Tired of waiting, some of the skirmishers behind the scenes are about to come out into the open.

Former Secretary of the Air Force Thomas K. Finletter, a New York City lawyer, will formally announce Wednesday that he is a candidate on the Democratic ticket to succeed the Republican incumbent, Irving M. Ives. Senator Ives is retiring for health reasons.

It is expected that Edward T. Dickinson of Albany, Commissioner of Commerce in the Harriman administration, will soon afterward confess publicly that he, too, is available.

James A. Farley, who needs no introduction to Democrats, has already proclaimed that he would enjoy returning to Washington in Ives' place.

This leaves two often-mentioned possibilities in the shrinking-violet category: Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City and New York County District Attorney Frank S. Hogan. Mayor Wagner's aides frankly admit they are pressing him to leave city hall for what they feel would be easy nomination and certain election triumphs.

An informed guess is that Hogan, like Dickinson, could be nominated only in the case of a Mexican standoff among the big names: Finletter, Farley and Wagner.

The actual nominating will take place at the state convention in Buffalo Aug. 25-26. Whether Gov. Harriman's command of the situation can last that long is an open question.

All aspirants or the men who have been scouting for them presently encounter agreeable receptions among Democratic leaders both in the city and upstate. With the exception of Farley, who has old and firm ties upstate with some leaders openly in his corner, the candidates find, however, that the organization is waiting upon the governor to indicate his choice.

There is nothing complicated or esoteric about the Harriman indecision. He wants to win by the biggest possible plurality so he can be a seriously considered candidate for President in 1960. All the other 1960 Democratic hopefuls are pointed toward the same goal.

Harriman has another problem. Although vigorous and in perfect health, he will be pushing 67 when Democrats nominate their next candidate for President.

What he obviously is trying to figure out is how to make the Senate race contribute to his plurality in the biggest possible way, and he would like to obviate age discussion as much as possible in the campaign.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Near East Crisis In Next 36 Hours

PARIS—Despite soothing assurances from Washington, the belief is growing here that the Soviet Union is likely to intervene directly in the Middle East crisis by landing Russian troops in Syria.

This was the conviction of sources with access to both governmental and private intelligence out of the turbulent area where American forces in Lebanon and British troops in Jordan are trying to sustain established order against the rising tide of Arab nationalism backed by Communism. The current crisis is expected to come to a climax in the following sequence of events:

In response to "appeals" from Syria to Moscow to help protect Syrian independence from "aggression" aimed from neighboring Jordan and the "imperialists" now entrenched there, Russian paratroops will be flown in. During the past two days both the Syrian and Egyptian radio have taken an increasingly violent tone, with charges that the "warmongering imperialists" intend to launch an attack against Jordan's neighbor. This is believed to be a buildup preparatory to Soviet action.

While this will throw a new fright into the West, the same sources that predict this move are also convinced that, barring an unforeseen incident, it will not lead to open conflict. Moscow's motive will be to obtain a stronger bargaining position. In the United Nations and in every other forum the Russians will say, "We came to protect our friends. We will remove our troops from Syria if and when you pull yours out of Lebanon and Jordan."

This will be the basis for negotiation either within the U.N. framework or possibly in a four-power conference at the foreign ministers' level. Such a conference, if it comes about as a result of the military stalemate, could conceivably take up larger issues, including a recognition of the role of Soviet Russia in the area.

The prospect of resolving the crisis in this way has given informed officials and those who must deal with the problem of Middle East oil a greater sense of assurance during the past 24 hours. They do not exclude an incident which could touch off a war that in the first phase would have a resemblance to the Korean conflict. But they believe that Moscow, despite all the shoutings and the demonstrations—these may even be symptomatic of a determination to avoid war while employing every form of threat and intimidation—is anxious to preserve peace. Considerable prominence has been given in Paris to reports that President Nasser on his secret emergency flight to Moscow stressed to Khrushchev the importance of avoiding any overt act that would set off a conflict.

Russia may, of course, stop short of actual intervention which involves grave risks. But to have troops in the area and particularly on the pretext of responding to the British-American "threat" would give the Soviets a bargaining power they do not now have, or such at any rate is the interpretation of experts here who are following each move in the newest crisis with intense interest. One thing appears certain, and that is that the climax has not yet been reached. It is likely to come in the next 24 to 36 hours.

Dulles: "Three times we've been on the brink of war."

Nixon: "I was very young then, and I am sorry."

Adams: "I was imprudent, but I am innocent."

Mrs. Adams: "They'll hound him."

Matter Of Alertness

Lincoln, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: The county and city officials seem to pull together on some issues. The expenses of the Stark-weather case are increasing.

One attorney would have been too many for one who killed innocent people in such a manner that in some of the cases was too terrible to publish or talk about. Why should taxpayers have to pay for his keep until December?

If the heads of the departments of county and city police had been on the job after the Colvert killing in December, think of all the people who might have been alive today. These department heads should have been punished severely for neglect of duty. The California expert was only a cover-up for their blunders—at our expense again. Then they pussy-foot around about salary raises for their stupidity.

Yes, we need alert men and good men who are worthy of salary raises and their jobs. There are too many wrong-doings within the departments to do a real job when needed.

HONEST TRUTH

Two Little Men

Willmar, Minn.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: This country has opposed Dulles because he is a war monger and has made enemies for us everywhere. The American people want peace as they know no nation can survive an atomic war. Nevertheless, Dulles and like have defied the wishes of our people and have brought us to war. The American people should force Congress to remove this Trojan horse and reverse this act of aggression.

This is a brazen Republican attempt to save mineral holdings for the American oil cartel. It's absurd when two little men can ignore our democracy and repudiate our rights and wishes. The fatal mistake this country made was when they failed to send Stevenson to the White House in both elections.

Wheel Tax Figures

Lincoln, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: Our City Council informed us before, during and after the public hearing, via the newspapers, that our wheel tax was comparable to Omaha's. Now I have the truth.

The company I work for operates about as many trucks in and out of Omaha and Lincoln as any other company. Today one of our Omaha trucks (kiddy-car size—3 tons) came to our shop and the driver showed me the Omaha wheel tax on this miniature. It was $20 and his private auto tax was $4. In Lincoln these same two vehicles would be: auto—$5; 3-ton truck—$8; Lincoln's biggest truck—$10.

Any questions?

I personally know of thousands of voters who will not hold still for this kind of inequity. I hope our Council can disregard the commercial interests long enough to readjust the wheel tax formula in line with the use made of our streets and the public's interest or I am sure the voters will sink same in November, ditto any proposed charter change that will make it next to impossible to conduct a referendum petition drive, at the charter revision election.

L. K. EMRY

Speed Limit

Sterling, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: Why did the state raise the speed limit? Every time you listen to the radio or pick up the paper, it is always "two die in crash" or "three die as truck hits car." When will this state wise up to all the people it's killing? It will be too late sometime. It used to sound a little better to hear "the toll for Iowa is 129 and for Nebraska 114." But Iowa wised up and put in a speed limit. What did Nebraska do? It raised the limit. Now the ratio is just about the other way around. We are always 15 or 20 above last year's toll.

Maybe this is Nebraska's way to thin out the population. Anyway those who made the decision are responsible for a lot of deaths. I thought we lived in a smart state, but I'm not so sure now.

ROBERT BENSON

The Peace Party

Blair, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: It is to be hoped that the electorate of this nation may one day not too far distant take enough critical interest in what is going on under their very noses to become angry enough to demand via their representatives in Washington that some action be taken to check inflationary forces largely brought about by profligate spending of the federal government.

Instead of spreading such wild rumors, folks would do well to look after their own responsibilities, such as clearing the way for an ambulance with the siren on. This wasn't done Monday.

We'd also like to take this means to thank Officer Tipton and any other person who helped at that time.

MRS. GROVER HARRIS

Our Nebraska congressmen and senators and those from other states haven't yet had the guts to denounce sending U.S. troops into the Mideast as an act of war. Why this pussy-footing? The United Nations was set up to handle such matters. We led this move.

Why this continued cover-up of anything that the Republican Eisenhower-Dulles team perpetrates—good or bad? The benign reasons, mouthed by our President to our troops engaged in an unlawful invasion of Lebanon for our government's action in taking such steps, are too asinine to stomach.

The only reason for the invasion of Lebanon was to protect international oil interests. This, in the face of the scurrilous charges by Republican leaders (including Eisenhower and Nixon) that the Democrats were war mongers and the Republicans the party of peace. Will our people never learn?

Where now is Nixon, the little man of peace, who no less than a month ago sounded the opening gun of his bid for the presidency in 1960 by proclaiming that the Republican party insures peace? Every year, for five, this administration has engineered crisis after crisis in order to get their demands for continued foreign aid give-aways through Congress.

DEWEY NEMETZ

A Rumor Checked

Lincoln, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I would like to clear up a false rumor about Motorcycle Patrolman Merlin Tipton. It is being rumored that at my husband's accident last Monday afternoon at 63rd and Morrill, Officer Tipton pronounced him dead and walked away without so much as checking his pulse. This isn't true. Officer Tipton helped my husband as much as was possible until the ambulance arrived, and then came to the hospital and explained to us just how the accident happened.

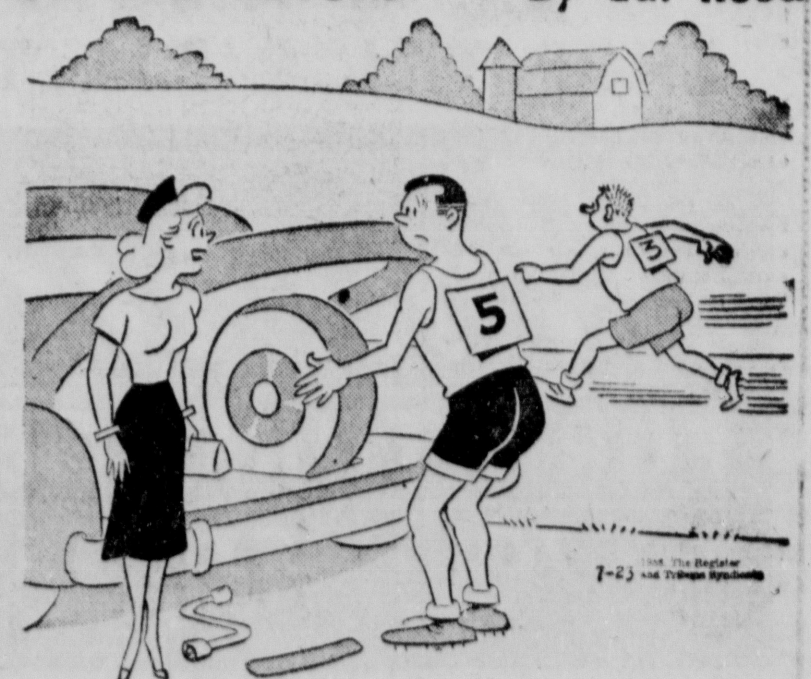

Instead of spreading such wild rumors, folks would do well to look after their own responsibilities, such as clearing the way for an ambulance with the siren on. This wasn't done Monday.

We'd also like to take this means to thank Officer Tipton and any other person who helped at that time.

Navy Adding 30 Ships To U.S. Sealift Fleet Plying To And From Mideast

Troop Action Said Routine

Washington (UPI) — The Navy said it is adding 30 ships to the U.S. fleet to aid in the sealift plying to and from the Middle East.

It said 12 cargo ships are in the process of being taken over from U.S. commercial lines and 15 tankers have been chartered "to meet the increased demand for petroleum shipments resulting from the upheaval."

In addition, the Navy said, a troop transport—the U.S. Walker—has been ordered out of mothballs "to meet current requirements." It said the Maritime Administration also has agreed to provide the fleet with 2 more cargo vessels.

Plans for enlarging the fleet was disclosed at a Pentagon briefing on military operations stemming from the action of the United States and Britain in sending troops into Lebanon and Jordan to defend their pro-western governments.

Routine

A Defense Department spokesman said U.S. troop operations in Lebanon during the past 24 hours had been routine except for a brief exchange of fire between the Marines and Lebanese police at the Beirut International Airport.

He said the incident was a case of mistaken identity, with the Marines being mistaken for rebels as they closed in on the airport to stop some actual rebel firing. The spokesman said no one was injured.

The spokesman also revealed that planes from the U.S. aircraft carriers Saratoga and Essex flew a total of 253 sorties during the 24 hours that ended Sunday night. The planes flew an identical number of sorties in the previous 24 hours.

The briefing officers said the number of U.S. combat troops in Lebanon now total 8,000 men—6,300 Marines and 1,700 paratroopers. In addition, they said, 300 military support troops have also arrived and 700 more are on their way.

Could Support

With U.S. Sixth Fleet Off Lebanon (UPI) — Vice Adm. Charles R. (Cat) Brown said that his 6th Fleet warplanes could support the British forces in any Jordan action if called upon.

"It would be almost as easy as supporting the amphibious forces in Lebanon," he said. Sixth Fleet planes flew over Jordan in a show of force as the British troops were landing there.

Pins Attacker

Baltimore (AP)—A cabbie who was conked on the head used his taxi to coral one of his young assailants and pinned him against a fence until police arrived.

Harry Komins, 48, told police he picked up 2 teen-age fares and the boys directed him to drive to a certain street. There, Komins was hit on the head with a blunt object.

He regained consciousness to see one of the boys running away. Komins gave chase in his cab and managed to pin the 17-year-old against a fence in an alley until police came. The boy was treated at a hospital for stomach injuries and returned to police custody.

SIDNEY HOSPITAL WORK GIVEN FEDERAL OKAY

Frank McNett of Grand Island, architect for the Cheyenne County Hospital addition of a geriatric care center, told State Health Department and U.S. Public Health officials Tuesday he believes construction on the project can begin in September.

McNett made the statement following approval by State Fire Marshal E. C. Iverson of the fire and safety standards set out for the hospital, and the relatively minor changes in the plans requested by U.S. Public Health officials.

The project at Sidney was approved under last year's allocation of Hill-Burton funds which provide 40% of the construction cost, and approval at each step along the way is required by federal officials.

Final Stages Reviewed

U. S. Public Health architect Robert Jackson and engineer Philip Dreyfuss arrived in Lincoln to review plans for the Cheyenne addition as well as other projects in the final stages from last year's allocations and preliminary plans for those approved for 1959 appropriations.

Chief change suggested by Jackson for the Cheyenne project was ventilation for the boiler room.

He also recommended that space be allocated and utilities provided for a beauty shop, barber shop, dentist chair and a podiatrist so the services may be more easily added when Cheyenne County wants them.

Basset Delegation

The group, including Verne Pangborn, hospital division chief for the State Health Department, also met with a delegation from Basset to discuss preliminary plans for the Rock County Hospital to be constructed with aid from this year's Hill-Burton funds.

The Basset group, planning for a total construction cost of $336,000, of which $134,400 would be federal funds, said it wanted a good hospital, but also one that will be "functionally and structurally economical."

State and federal health officials also discussed an expansion of the Kimball County Hospital from its present 24 beds to a total of 38 beds and went over preliminary plans for the alterations.

Cozad Home

The health officials will meet Wednesday with representatives from Cozad to go over plans for a nursing home, and then later will review final plans for the Dodge County Hospital addition.

Lincoln's Bryan Memorial Hospital, which received one of the top priorities for allocations out of 1959 fiscal year funds, will be given an audience Thursday afternoon when its preliminary plans are reviewed.

Pangborn said his division has prepared for the federal government its allocation system for the new appropriation which calls for granting $388,425 to Dodge County for completion of its project, $134,400 to Rock County, $130,000 to Fillmore County for its proposed hospital at Geneva, and $800,000 for Bryan.

He noted that it is hoped enough federal funds can be obtained from other Hill-Burton money for categorical services to give Bryan all the money it needs under this year's appropriation.

Express Regrets

Washington (AP) — The United States has expressed regret to Austria for any flights by U.S. transports over its territory last week in connection with the troop landings in Lebanon.

The Austrian Defense Ministry had publicly complained about such flights, bringing a Soviet government protest that the United States was violating international treaties by such actions.

U.S. Delays Act In Recognizing New Iraq Chiefs

Washington (AP) — The State Department said Tuesday it is seeking further clarification of developments in Iraq before considering diplomatic recognition of the revolutionary regime.

A spokesman reported this in commenting on published reports that the United States has already begun consultations with other friendly governments on possible recognition of the new regime.

Press officer Lincoln White told a news conference in answer to questions:

"There are a lot of unknown factors we want to familiarize ourselves with before taking action in this respect."

Senators Vote CIA Quiz

...Why Did Iraq Revolt Catch U.S. Flat-Footed?

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted Tuesday to summon officials of the hush-hush Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) for questioning as to why the Iraq revolt caught this country flat-footed.

The decision was reached as only 11 senators showed up to hear Undersecretary of State Christian A. Herter give the first of a series of daily closed-door briefings on the swiftly-changing picture in the Middle East.

Herter told the group the United States has no intention of moving troops into Iraq. According to Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.), Herter told him nothing he "didn't know from the morning papers."

Would Call Dulles

Fulbright later offered the motion to call CIA Director Allen W. Dulles and other officials of the agency for questioning.

Sen. William Langer (R-ND) followed this up by introducing a resolution in the Senate calling for a "thorough investigation" of the CIA. He said it was "imperative" to prevent "even more devastating damage . . . to the security of our nation and the world."

"The Iraq revolution is not the only major turn of events which gives the Senate basic reasons for this investigation," he said.

Langer cited the Suez crisis and the South American disorders that greeted Vice President Nixon as other examples of CIA failure to keep this country abreast of developments abroad.

State Department, Too

The Foreign Relations group likewise agreed of question members of the State Department's policy planning staff about the nature of the new Iraq government and factors leading up to the surprise revolt.

Senate Democratic Whip Mike Mansfield (Mont) said that the West should give "serious consideration" to the possibility of recognizing the revolutionary government.

Big Processors Get Farm Money Brock Charges

Wakefield, Neb. — Huge amounts of money are diverted from agricultural programs into the hands of big processors of farm produce, Democratic congressional candidate Larry Brock charged.

The 3rd District nominee referred to a Commodity Credit Corp. transaction approved by Secretary of Agriculture Benson in which Brock said, 8 American food companies gained more than $1 million in profits.

These companies, he said, sold cheese to the government for 37c per pound and, without the cheese leaving their warehouse, they were able to buy it back for only 32½c a pound.

The federal courts have since "ordered the 8 food companies guilty and asked them to refund their profits in the strange deal with the Department of Agriculture," Brock said.

The Democrat said his Republican opponent, Robert Harrison of Norfolk, member of the House Agricultural Committee which "favors corporation-type farming," has "failed to fully represent the agricultural needs of the Midwest."

Blaine, Thomas Counties Told Land Values Too Low

By Betty Person

The State Board of Equalization Tuesday told county assessors from Blaine and Thomas counties that their land value was too low and asked for an explanation on why land assessed at less than $15 an acre was lower than that of other counties in the immediate area.

Gov. Victor Anderson, board chairman, told Blaine County Assessor Elmer

Demary and Thomas County Assessor Fred Arnholt, that they had been asked to appear for an "explanation" and not a "scolding."

Demary told the board he was quitting his $2,600 a year post after 30 years and therefore had nothing to hide.

"Tain't worth lying to you folks, no reason to at all," Demary said. "But we've done right by you in the past and we're doing it now."

Sale Value Down

Demary said that sale values of land in Blaine County were generally down and that although the board has placed a relatively high property tax levy on Blaine in the past, county residents have never registered too much complaint.

Anderson said the board would make adjustments in the counties' valuations after it has heard from the other counties called to appear Thursday. These are Brown, Garfield, Hooker, Lincoln and McPherson.

In other action the board approved assessed valuations for various types of freight cars and authorized State Tax Commissioner Fred Herington to seize a car from anyone who does not pay his car-line taxes.

The assessed value per car: beer car, $1,200; box, $975; coal or hopper, $935; flat, $525; fruit, $1,500; furniture, $1,050; heater, $1,050; poultry, $975; refrigerator, $1,350; stock, $975 and tank, $900.

The depreciation schedule allowed for the cars: 1st year, (1958), 25%; 2nd year, 38%; 3rd year, 49%; 4th year, 58%; 5th year, 65%; 6th year, 71%; 7th year, 76% and 8th year, 80%.

County Soil Bank To Pay $1 Million

Lancaster County farmers can expect to receive slightly more than a million dollars in soil bank acreage payments in 1958 according to Dale E. Nelson, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

Payments totaling $1,076,133 have already been made, according to Nelson, with the final amount expected to reach $1,024,560.

He said all farmers who were in compliance with their agreements by deadline dates should receive their payments in a "few weeks."

Payments in the conservation reserve part of the soil bank program will not be made until after Oct. 1.

The terms of the soil bank agreements must be continued by the farmers even though payment has been made, Nelson said.

Chaplin To Wed

St. Jean - Cap Ferrat, France (UPI)—Sydney Chaplin, actor son of comedian Charlie Chaplin, and French ballerina Noelle Adam stood holding hands in a garden here and announced they will be married soon.

It was the third time the 34-year-old Chaplin has announced marriage plans. Previously, he had announced intentions of marrying British screen star Joan Collins and comedienne Judy Holliday, who played opposite him in the Broadway play "The Bells Are Ringing."

Slain Iraq Premier Left Article Decrying Western Policies

New York (AP) — Iraqi Premier Nuri Said, slain in the Iraq revolution, left behind him an article decrying western policy toward the Middle East.

"Speaking as an Arab and friend of the West, I'm fed up," he wrote in the current issue of Life Magazine. "Most responsible Arabs feel the same."

Said declared the world seems utterly indifferent to the fate of a million Arab refugees and that neither the United States nor any other big power is even discussing Arab claims against Israel.

"The sense that the West has abandoned us is as strong as it was in 1955 before Nasser electrified the Arab world by his arms deal with Russia, or even stronger," Said wrote.

"We who believe in the West warned then of ultimate disaster. We were ignored and the disaster came. Disaster is equally predictable today. If it came once the Nasser way, it could be as a Communist coup next time."

'Bellyful'

Said reported that he had been told Americans "have had a bellyful of Arab intransigence about Israel."

"To speak more bluntly," he continued, "responsible Arab leaders have had a bellyful of American blindness to the problem."

"Americans seem incapable of comprehending the profoundly bitter, even pathological, attitude of Arabs toward the Jews of Israel . . ."

"When the U.N. voted to partition Palestine in 1947 the Arabs fought. But they were humiliated, and the terror that drove a half million Arabs from Palestine has never diminished. Abandoned by the West, maddened by frustration, the Arabs inevitably were tempted by the honeyed promises of Communism."

Present Danger

Said held that the United States was reverting "to a familiar state of mind: That Israel is an embarrassing, second-priority problem, as compared with the clear and present danger of Communism, and may therefore be put aside."

"To Arab masses," Said held, "the reverse is true: Israel is the clear and present danger. This is a fallacy. The evidence indicates Communist tyranny is probably a lot worse than Israeli tyranny, but it is impossible to sell this concept to Arabs."

Morrison Tells Students Of Need For Leadership

Chadron — The greatest need in the United States is for "able, intelligent, honest, dedicated political leadership," Democratic senatorial candidate Frank Morrison of Lincoln told Chadron State College summer session students.

The 53-year-old attorney charged all people "and especially the young" to become active in politics.

The most important challenge to American education is to encourage young men and women of character and ability to become more active in politics, Morrison said.

"Politics is merely the science of government and whether good or bad depends on the people interested and participating in politics," he pointed out.

Morrison is on a 16-day tour to "sound out" Nebraska's political fever.

State Demo Fund Supply Said Better

Lincoln Star Special

Newcastle, Neb. — One of Nebraska Democrats' biggest problems of both the past and the present — adequate finances — may be partially solved this campaign year.

Democratic State Chairman Russell Hanson said Tuesday that the expressed views of Nebraskans this year indicates "an improved situation"

'Hard To See'

Washington (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles told a group of boys it is hard to see why anyone would want to be Secretary of State.

It was a joke. Dulles spent much of his life preparing to take over the position he has held from the beginning of the Eisenhower administration.

Dulles spoke before the Boys' Nation, a youth organization sponsored by the American Legion and comprising a make-believe government.

so far as individual campaign contributions are concerned.

"People seem to be more ready to do something," he said. "They feel more liberal and believe we have a better chance."

As for national party funds, Hanson said that Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler had told state Democrats that they "might get some," but could make no commitments until the national party's financial situation is further evaluated.

National political party funds normally go to areas where party leaders believe they have the best chance of winning or to areas where the vote appears to be close.

Long Republican-dominated territory, Nebraska has not often fared well from national Democratic allocations.

Hanson said he had no information on possible contributions from labor organizations or other sources.

"There are indications that GOP leaders are becoming worried. They are sniping at us, which is a very good sign they are running scared," Hanson said.

Nebraska Democrats will gather in Grand Island Saturday to formulate plans for the 1958 fall campaign and elect an executive committee comprised of 2 members from each of the 4 congressional districts.

Lancaster Board Adopts New Code Of Ethics

Indecision Is Finally Resolved

By Del Harding

After months of controversy and indecision the Lancaster County Board Tuesday adopted a 9-point "ethics code" to guide the conduct of Board members.

The Board unanimously approved the 9 points which its Ethical Practices Committee recommended in its June report. But Commissioner Del Lienemann failed in his attempt to add to the code adopted 7 more points on which the committee had disagreed.

Statutes 'Adequate'

Highlight of the committee's report was the declaration that "statutory provisions governing County Boards, if adhered to both in letter and in spirit, are an adequate guide for their conduct." This was one of the 9 points adopted by the Board.

Lienemann accused fellow Commissioners Russell Brehm and Rollin Bailey of "stalling" when they said they wished to study the points he proposed to add to the code. He said he would bring up the matter every week until it is acted upon.

The points which Lienemann tried unsuccessfully to add to the code dealt with "conflict of interest" matters. He revised 2 of the points from what the committee had recommended.

One states that a Commissioner should not "perform services for or contract with any public licensee of the county." Lienemann added the word "public," which was not in the committee report.

'Personally Added'

The other change was to add the word "personally" to a prohibition against accepting contributions from any county supplier. He said he believed it would be proper for a committee to solicit campaign funds on behalf of a Commissioner as long as the Commissioner did not do so in person.

Brehm and Bailey indicated they did not agree with the changes he made in the committee's recommendations, but agreed to study the matter further.

The "code" which was adopted by the Board:

1. That the statutory provisions governing county boards, if adhered to both in letter and in spirit, are an adequate guide for their conduct.
2. That declared ethical standards tend to become habits of life and may, therefore, be helpful as an additional guide for the conduct of public officials.
3. That any code of ethics should be designed to set forth moral principles as distinguished from legal principles, and may, therefore, constitute a supplement to the statutory guide.
4. That moral principles as related to public officials are the basis of obligations and duties which society requires of its members, as well as the standard of conduct which an individual has constructed for himself.
5. That the assumption of the office upon the incumbent obligations in respect to his personal conduct which concern his relation to the citizens of the county and the state.

In light of the foregoing, the following principles are to be adopted:

- a. That the spirit, as well as the letter of the laws of the state of Nebraska, relating to the powers and duties of county commissioners should be adhered to.
- b. In seeking and accepting the office of county commissioner, the commissioner must recognize the requirements and limitations imposed upon him and his business and professional relationships, and in the light of the requirements and limitations determine his qualifications and ability to serve.
- c. If the acceptance of the office for the remuneration it provides is a sacrifice, it should not be accepted unless the sacrifice is willingly and voluntarily made.
- d. The commissioner must recognize that he is a servant of the people; that he has been elected to the office by the people; that his compensation is paid by the people; that all of the duties performed by him are performed for and on behalf of the people and that the interests of the people must be first and foremost.

Here is the section proposed by Lienemann on which the Board deferred action:

1. Not to solicit directly or indirectly any business for himself or for his financial benefit from persons, firms, or companies supplying materials or services to the county.
2. Not to perform services for or contract with any public licensee of the county.
3. Not to make use of county supplies, equipment or facilities for his own business or profession.
4. Not to make use of the services of county employees for his own business or profession.
5. Not to accept or hold positions which involve or may involve a conflict of interest.
6. Not to vote or participate in any matter where there is a conflict of interest.
7. Not to personally accept contributions or anything of material value from any person, firm or company doing business with the county.

Alliance Challenges Iowa's Corn

Floyd Stone, Alliance, Neb., farmer and former chairman of the Nebraska Fish and Game Commission, inspects 7-foot corn in his irrigated field. The newspaper suggested editorially that the area can support a large livestock feeding and packing industry. (AP Wire-photo)

Union Awaits Court Action

Union officials indicated Tuesday that they intend to wait for the U.S. District Court decision before the bus drivers take any further action in their strike against American Trailways.

The court will hear a motion filed by trustees of the company asking the court to give instructions in connection with alleged interference with the operations of the bus lines.

The motion, which will be heard Thursday, also requests instructions on the future actions of the company officials.

Filed by Trustee Richard W. Smith, Lincoln attorney, and Trustee W. F. Aikman, a company official, the motion charges "improper and unlawful interference" by the International Organization of the Amalgamated Ass'n. of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America caused a breakdown of normal negotiations with union local officials.

Negotiations between company officials and the union broke off July 14 when a contract agreement was reached. The contract was rejected by a vote of the union members.

The strike affects some 400 drivers and 225 hourly-paid employees in 28 states. It has been in progress 22 days.

Long Beach, Calif. (P)—Tattoo or not tattoo?

The City Council of this Navy base city solemnly considered this question: Shall epidermal adornment be prohibited?

Said Municipal Judge Kenneth E. Sutherland, who proposed the ordinance against skin art: "The men who have been tattooed here will always remember with deep regret their visit to our city."

Countered Councilman D. Pat Ahern:

"What will our boys show foreign girls when they go abroad? We certainly don't want to deprive them of any advantages."

The council decided to take no immediate action.

Added 1/2-Hour Of Over-Bar Beer In County Ruled Out

A proposed 30-minute extension of the hours of the county's beer taverns on Saturday nights was voted down Tuesday by the Lancaster County Board.

Although no one appeared at a public hearing July 15 to object to the proposal, Board Chairman Russell Brehm said he had received "6 or 7" phone calls from persons opposing the extension. He and Commissioners Del Lienemann and Rollin Bailey all voted not to approve the request, which had been made by tavern operator Bob Lear.

Present limits are 12 a.m. for on-sale and 12:30 a.m. for off-sale beer.

In other action, the Board heard budget requests from 4 agencies which receive county financial support.

Salt-Wahoo Request

The Salt-Wahoo Watershed Assn. asked for $6,120, the same as last year. Association secretary Robert Crosby said he believes 85% of the benefits of the group's flood prevention program go to Lancaster County. Saunders County also helps finance the association's $600 a month budget.

County Fair Board President Otto Liebers said his group was asking $8,400 this year, which is $750 higher than last year. He cited increased 4-H Club work as requiring the increase.

The Veterans Service Center submitted its request for $45,000, compared with $37,500 last year. The County Agricultural Agent's office requested $14,570 compared with $14,165 during the last fiscal year.

Two Lincoln men appeared before the Board and asked about opening a private dancing club in a building at 4th and Charleston. The Board told John Jones of 2111 T and Crosby Napue of 938 No. 27th they must submit a formal written request and a public hearing would have to be scheduled on the matter.

Chairman Brehm also announced he would not name the 3 members of the county's personal property reappraisal committee until next week. The committee will supervise a professional appraisal of the personal property of the county's business and professional firms.

Duke To Perform

Stratford, Ont. (P)—An old favorite of Princess Margaret, Duke Ellington, will bring his 17-piece band to Stratford July 31 to play for her.

Shakespearean festival officials said the Duke and his jazz musicians will perform in the Stratford arena after the Princess sees "The Winter's Tale" in the evening.

Tools Stolen

Police are investigating the theft of tools valued at $84.25 taken from 2040 No. 60th Monday night. The tools, property of Ralph Fleishmann of 3140 No. 47th, consisted of a $50 electric saw, a ladder, broom, pliers and a caulking gun.

Interstate Cut Attempt Predicted

The president of the National Good Roads Assn. Tuesday predicted that some efforts will undoubtedly be made in the next session of congress to cut back the interstate highway program "as a matter of economy."

J. Anton Hagios of Newark, N.J., discussed the national highway picture and some of the difficulties being encountered in connection with carrying forward the interstate program. Hagios addressed his policy committee of the Better Nebraska Assn. and members of the Highway Committee of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce at a noon luncheon.

One of the major problems, Hagios said, is the right-of-way acquisition problem and the public acceptance of the principle of limited access.

A minority of states, he said, face the problem of obtaining enough local revenue to meet the requirements of the national program. He mentioned some farm and petroleum groups as being among groups who have organized at the local level to oppose adequate revenue.

New LAFB Hours

New working hours have been announced by Lincoln Air Force Base officials. Effective Wednesday, the 818 Air Base Group and 98th Bomb Wing will observe a 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. working day. Hours for the 307th Bomb Wing will be from 7:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m.

IRAQIS VERY FRIENDLY TO U.S.-LINCOLNITE

The people of Iraq are very friendly toward America, Miss Mabel Lee of Lincoln, who was in Baghdad from September, 1952 to June, 1953, said.

Miss Lee, having served as director of physical education at the University of Nebraska for 28 years, went to Baghdad on a Fulbright grant, as consultant in the Iraqi Ministry of Education.

During her stay there, Miss Lee met Fadhil Jamali, Iraq's former prime minister, foreign minister and United Nations delegate, now under arrest awaiting trial for treason.

"Mr. Jamali, who has a very entertaining personality, was very deeply interested in what we Americans were doing over there and always glad to help us," Miss Lee said.

Ruth Hovland Named GOP State Officer

Miss Ruth Hovland of Lincoln has been named to the executive committee of the Nebraska Republican state central committee.

Civil Defense Gives Advice On Survival But Stresses: 'No Alert'

The Nebraska Civil Defense Agency Tuesday released information vital to survival in case of enemy attack but, at the same time, it stressed that there has been no "alerting or mobilization" of CD forces.

"This does not mean," Austin S. Bacon, deputy state CD director, said, "that there is no reason for increased activity in CD throughout the state. . . now, more than at any time, CD must be placed in a condition of operational readiness."

Pointing out that alerts called in the armed services "do not mean that we are at war," Bacon noted that warnings to the general public will be accomplished in one of 2 ways:

—warning initiated by the North American Defense Command (NORAD) through a system of telephonic warning devices. Omaha is the state's recipient warning point; Lincoln is the secondary warning point.

All states will receive the warning simultaneously in approximately 90 seconds. All communities in Nebraska will be warned via the state CD office in 5 minutes or less.

—warning through a CONELRAD alert via radio and television stations. CONELRAD stations on 640 or 1240 KC on radio will then go into operation with CD instructions. Secure a battery-powered radio for this purpose, CD warns.

The difference in siren signals was again pointed out: one long steady blast of 3 to 5 minutes means evacuate; one fluctuating or warbling tone lasting for 3 to 5 minutes means to find shelter.

If evacuation is necessary, CD said, the automobile should be ready (with at least a half tank of gasoline) to serve as a "temporary home." The car radio should be in excellent working condition, CD suggests.

A home shelter will provide better survival opportunities if a take cover signal comes in to effect, CD said.

Other supplies suggested:

Cereals: 7 individual serving pkgs.
Crackers: 1 box.
Beverages: Instant coffee—1 (2 oz.) jar; instant tea—1 (1 oz.) jar; instant cocoa—1 (1 lb.) pkg.

Games for children are suggested, and candy, gum and tobacco are optional.

Final CD instruction: "Keep calm."

$4,087,000 RECOMMENDED FOR LAFB

The House Appropriations Committee Tuesday recommended that $4,087,000 be provided for military construction at Lincoln Air Force Base.

The Air Force's original request for this base was $4,250,000 but the service trimmed down its own estimate.

The Lincoln construction is understood to include 8 projects, among them hard-surfaced areas at the ends of runways for emergency use, traffic control and lighting equipment, new shops and a new crew building.

LAFB officials in Lincoln said they had not yet received official notification of the appropriations and, therefore, did not know what may have been cut from the authorized projects.

The Associated Press reported from Washington that the House committee Tuesday slashed by nearly 1-3rd the money asked for construction at military bases in the United States and abroad.

'Merely A Dream'

In shrinking the funds by $511, 838,000 from $1,730,653,000 asked, the committee said too many requests were administration request to cut based on "merely a dream in some planner's mind."

At the same time a Senate appropriations subcommittee voted, in the light of the Mid-east upheaval, press dispatches said, to turn down an

The State Health Department has reported that a non-paralytic polio case was registered during the past week in Kimball.

This brings Nebraska's total registered polio case load for the year to 9, compared with 39 at this time last year.

The department also said one animal rabies case, involving a skunk, was reported from Knox County, bringing the total animal rabies cases for the year to 14, compared with 22 at this time last year.

Around The World

The Duke of Kent, most eligible royal bachelor, got a jive lesson from a 20-year-old factory girl here Saturday night.

The regimental dance was a pretty frosty party until the 22-year-old Duke and blonde Pat Brennan started the joint jumping.

The Duke overheard Pat complain she was bored. As any officer (Lieutenant in the swank Royal Scots Greys) and gentleman (first cousin of Queen Elizabeth II) would, he bought her a drink and asked her to dance.

Then came the jiving. "Let's go," said Pat. "His skin-tight uniform made it difficult, but he picked it up wonderfully," she said later.

Pat was the only girl the Duke danced with.

"He told me I had the most wonderful blue eyes," she said.

Prince Philip will soon show his skill as a polo player before a television audience.

The British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) says a match in which the Prince is playing will be televised today.

Queen Elizabeth's husband regularly plays polo before a select audience in Windsor Park. The TV match will be at Cardiff as a benefit for the British Empire Games.

Robert G. Fleming, co-producer of the American wild west show at the Bursells world's fair, said Monday the show probably would fold unless the government came through with a $150,000 emergency loan.

The rodeo cast includes 60 cowboys, 30 cowgirls and 50 Sioux Indians from the Pine Ridge range in South Dakota.

July has a way of being the blaziest month of the year. So even though you think your toddler is completely tanned, beware the blazing beach. Remember, the reflected rays from the sand and water add considerably to the scorching power of the sun. Watch your little beachcomber... and try not to expose him to direct sunlight for more than a few minutes at a time. Some kind of head covering is desirable. If shoulders show the slightest pink, slip on a shirt, pronto.

Fruitful favorites for the "gadabout" set. Gerber Junior Fruits are always popular, but especially so in summer. The tempting colors and refreshing flavors are more than enough to spark a summer appetite. Like all good-tasting Gerber Junior Foods, they have the tender, evenly minced texture that's just right for tots learning to chew. All are specially prepared in the absence of air to preserve color, flavor and the utmost in nutritive value.

Table tip for self-feeders who dine with the family occasionally. A place mat of paper toweling under junior's dish will catch driplets, spare your table mats or cloth from stains. Easy to roll up and dispose of at clear-away time.

First year birthday fanfare. Year-olds dearly love paper. A lot of little, inexpensive gifts, gaily wrapped for eager fingers to open, are more fun than one big, expensive toy.

Birthday treat—or anytime treat for snack-begging toddlers.

The News Around Town For Men Only

—for a brief time this morning we thought the column would be dedicated to homecomers—But then we learned that guests were arriving—and that for the guests there would be a series of courtesies, and from then on the picture changed.

—but homecomers always are an important part of the news around town, so we'll start the social merry-go-round with them.

We heard, for instance, that Mrs. Robert Ferguson returned home on Tuesday morning from Denver where she had been spending several days as the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hite Grainger and their family.

—the Ammons—Mr. and Mrs. William, and their daughter, Vicki, are back in town, too.

Mr. and Mrs. Ammon have been both east and west of Lincoln. They first went to Chicago, where they attended the Shrine convention and afterward paused in Lincoln long enough to pick up their daughter for the trip to Colorado—Denver, specifically.

—also home again—and from Colorado—are Mr. and Mrs. E. Sheldon Hallett who are just getting unpacked after a 10 days vacation in the Fall River Road area of Estes Park.

—the welcome mat will be all prettied up in time for the Sunday arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Vincent Johnson of Washington, D.C. who will spend a week as the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Weaver.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are coming for the graduation of their daughter, Miss Nancy Johnson, from the University of Nebraska when summer commencement ceremonies are held on Aug. 1. Also arriving to attend the commencement ceremonies and to join the family group for a few days visit will be another Johnson daughter, Mrs. Keith Britton who, with her young son, will arrive from Sioux City on Wednesday.

—the courtesies for Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will begin on Sunday evening when they will dine with a group of their friends at the Lincoln Country Club.

Complimenting Mr. and Mrs. Johnson on Monday evening will be Dr. and Mrs. L. D. Arnot who have invited dinner guests to their home.

And on Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Weaver will be a dinner host and hostess at the Lincoln County Club, honoring the visitors. Dinner places will be arranged for 34.

For the majority of the male population the "home away from home" is the office, and be it merely a corner niche or of the more spacious variety, we've come across a number of eye-catching office accessories that should be of interest.

Before continuing, we hasten to assure you we are not like the wife who advocated ruffled curtains in her husband's domain for that homey atmosphere. The office is a place of business where simplicity of decor is the keynote.

Think you will agree that one of the saddest looking articles on a desk by the middle of the day is the much used ash tray. The remains of crumpled cigarettes and perhaps a cigar or two lie nestled in their bed of ashes presenting a most unappealing picture to one and all who may view the receptacle. Now if you are fortunate enough to have a private secretary who keeps things impressively neat, all well and good. However, since the housewifely secretary does not grace many an office we are left where we began—with a dirty ash tray.

The answer to the problem is an item on the market designed especially for the busy man behind the desk. This bowl-shaped ashtray of metal is fitted with a revolving half cover. When one side of the ashtray becomes dirty, just give the bowl a half-twist and the clean side of the bowl is showing while the used portion is "under cover."

Fine, but what happens when both sides have been used? Why then you put into use the felt sweeper which also swivels from the center raised portion of the ash tray fitting tightly to the shape of the bowl. Thus you can scoop the debris under the covered half without leaving a trace of ashes.

Unfortunately the ash tray must be emptied from time to time.

We Hear That

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Veach have returned home from a three-week vacation trip to Wyoming, the Black Hills and Edgemont, S. D., where they visited their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Veach, and their children. They were accompanied to Edgemont by their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Norman Veach, and grandchildren, who had been visiting in Lincoln as the guests of Mrs. Veach's parents, Dr. and Mrs. L. J. Owen.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Woolman left Lincoln on Sunday for Baltimore, Md., where they will visit their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Fleming, and new grandson. The baby's paternal grandfather is P. M. Fleming of Minneapolis. Mrs. Fleming will be remembered as the former Shirley Woolman.

About WOMEN

The girls won't like this:

A few weeks ago a National Conference on Social Changes and Implications was held in Colorado. One of the main speakers was Dr. Margaret Lantis of the U.S. Public Health Service. Dr. Lantis told the group that the coffee hour should be eliminated.

Dr. Margaret Lantis said women workers especially need more exercise during the work day. She recommended programs of calisthenics and recreation facilities, such as quicits and ping-pong.

She told a National Conference on Social Changes and Implications that Americans need "to get on their feet and walk."

Walking won't prevent heart attacks, she said, but it is associated with a lower rate of heart disease.

"We can't afford to ridicule the bird watchers and daisy pickers," she commented, suggesting that Americans need more of such activity.

Ask your grandma:

Ask grandma or great-grandma where she picked up her pressed glass cracker bowl, or that exquisite clock she has on the mantle in the parlor. You might be surprised.

If grandma lived before the days of trading stamps the chances are that she saved coupons—or soap wrappers, or bought enough pounds of coffee or tea to collect what now are considered "collectors' items." That's the origin of many of today's antiques, according

The lady didn't scream—

Actress Betsy Von Fursenberg defended herself against charges by a policeman that she screamed he was a "Hitler" for arresting her husband on a drunk driving charge, stated:

"I wasn't screaming, I was just emphatic and vehement."

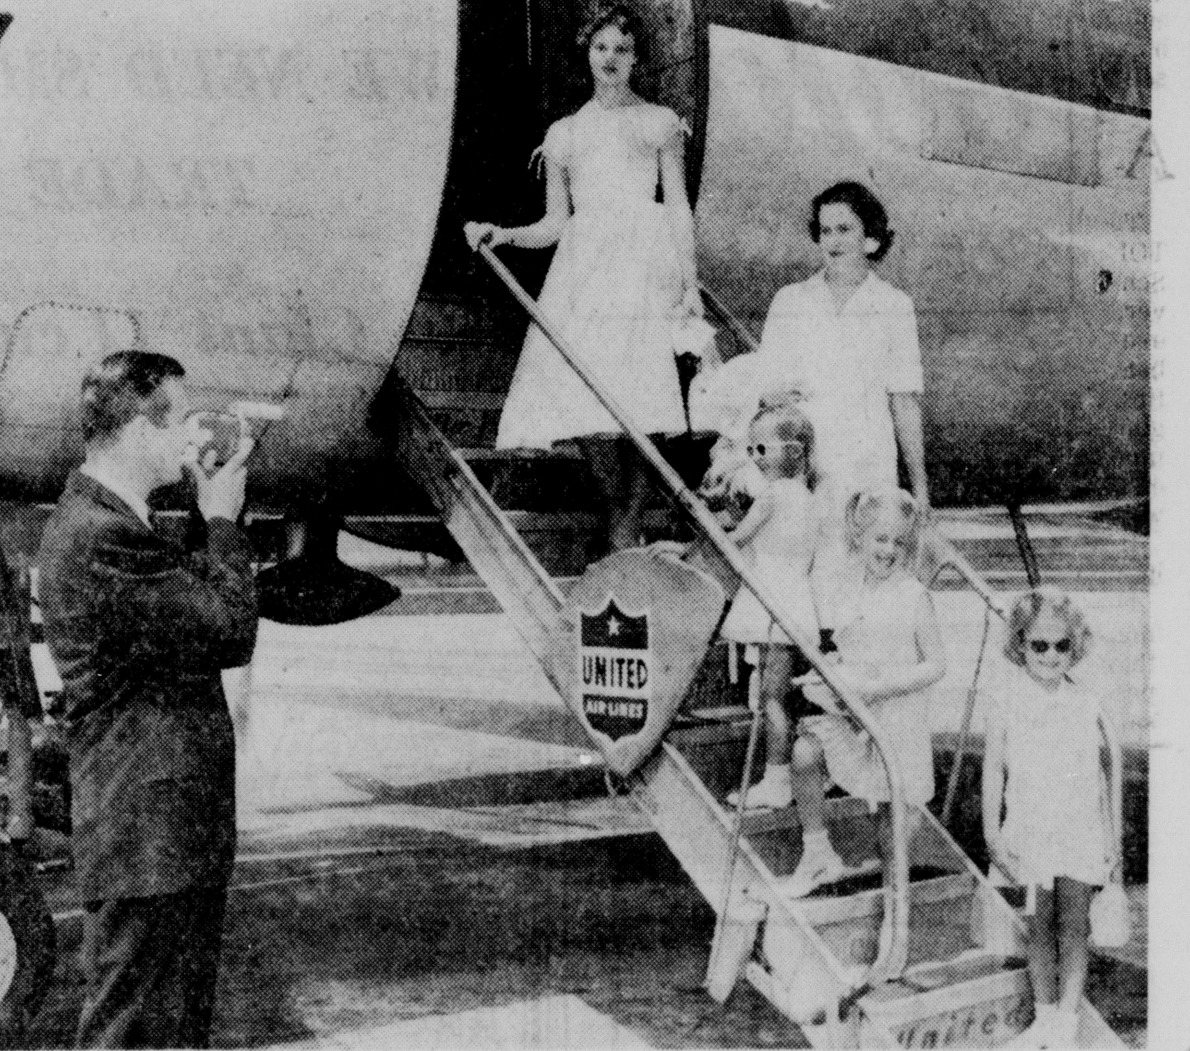

Well, now—

It's orange polar bears. Designer Jeanne Campbell thinks a polar bear is prettier if it's orange.

And she is making bright orange "baby polar bear" jackets to prove her point.

The "bear" in the jacket isn't real; it's a man-made synthetic. So is Miss Campbell's white "polar bear," and her brown, gray or black "kirma"—a softly curled, short-haired fake fur that looks a lot like lamb.

Both fake furs were inspired by the designer's recent trip to Finland. They're used in snugly separates that would keep a girl warm in Finland, or in Minnesota in January.

FOR THE YOUNG SET

The three small Misses Swanson, Wallis, Jaime and Sherri, made it as quickly to the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Farrar in Hyannis yesterday, as it took grandmother to go down the road a piece a few years ago.

Yesterday Miss Wallis, Miss Jaime and Miss Sherri, accompanied by their mother, Mrs. James Swanson, and Miss Mairie Osborn, planned off for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Farrar.

For the small Swansons the group might well have been leaving on an extended trip to Europe, they were that excited. You see, it was their very first plane trip.

Dear Abby . . .

All Adults: Take Notice

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Is this question from a 13-year-old girl too foolish to answer? Nobody else has been able to answer it for me. On Sunday the people around our town will get out their lawnmowers, paint brushes, or start working on their cars and I have even seen them washing and ironing. Don't these people know it is Sunday and that the Ten Commandments say "REMEMBER THE SABBATH DAY AND KEEP IT HOLY?" In the Bible it says to work six days, and rest on the seventh, and the day of rest should be the one to honor your God. Do you know the answer, Abby?

GLORIA
DEAR GLORIA: Unfortunately, many people turn to God only when they want something, and they forget Him when they have it. Letters like yours should remind adults that youngsters are looking to us for guidance and they do as we DO, not as we SAY. ("... and a little child shall lead them").

DEAR ABBY: Since when is a girl from off the farm supposed to be "green"? I happen to be a city girl myself, but when I was eleven I spent a summer vacation at my uncle's farm and I've never been the same since. The farm is an ideal place to learn the facts of life if there ever was one. Any man who goes to a motel to "baby sit" with a 19-year-old farm girl had better look out for himself.

CITY GIRL
DEAR ABBY: I think my poor mother-in-law ought to go to a hospital to get away from her husband and build herself up. I slept over there one night last week and she has to put up with so much you'd never believe it. My father-in-law snores like a horse and no matter what part of the house you move to you can still hear him. He also gets up every half-hour to get a drink or for other purposes and he slams the doors and bumps into things causing a terrible racket. My poor mother-in-law hasn't had a good night's sleep in twenty years. How can we get her to go to a hospital before she's carried to one?

SORRY FOR MOM
DEAR SORRY: Your father-in-law's nocturnal activities seem to bother you more than they bother your mother-in-law. Perhaps she's learned to live with it. Love is not only blind—it's deaf!

DEAR ABBY: I work in the composing room of a newspaper where the temperature is equivalent to that of a Turkish bath. There are about 50 men in here who like to have the windows open and the electric fans going. There is one woman who also works here and she says she is cold and has sinus trouble and can't stand any draft. We open the windows and she closes them. We turn on the fans and she turns them off. Should all of us suffer because of her? What is your verdict, Abby?

DYING OF THE HEAT
DEAR DYING: In a democracy the majority rules. Don't let her give you any more heat.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has taken up ham radio operating as a hobby and he would rather talk to a stranger in Syracuse, New York, than to me. He spends all his time on his ham radio and I am getting fed up with being ignored. Is there anything I can do to get his attention or should I hope he outgrows it?

HAM RADIO WIDOW
DEAR H. R. W.: Some hams are never cured. Don't give him the air before you find out what's on it. Women have also found this hobby fascinating.

If you have a problem, write to Abigail Van Buren in care of this paper. She will be glad to answer your letter. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

THE STAR IN SUBURBIA

COUNTRY CLUB TERRACE
Understand that Mr. and Mrs. Jack Holmquist (Carolyn Carter) settled in their new home at 2525 St. Thomas Dr. the latter part of June, and shortly after moving in a group of friends entertained for the couple at an informal housewarming.

A newly arrived member of the talcum powder set is Miss Susan Kay Gross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gross, who put in her premiere appearance at St. Elizabeth Hospital on Monday, July 21. The young lady has a sister, Carol Lynn, and a brother, John, and her grandparents are Mrs. Ruth Rosenzweig of Omaha, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Gross of Minneapolis, Minn.

Incidentally, Susan's great-grandmother, Mrs. Emma B. Christie of Omaha, arrived in the suburb on Monday evening to lend a helping hand. She will be returning home this week end.

Turning for a moment to news of vacationers we hear that Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bias and their children, Bobbie and Ann, left Lincoln last week on a two-week trip. The family planned to motor first to the Ozarks and then to Huntington, W. Va., where they will visit Mr. Bias' parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bias, and other friends. Before their return, they also plan a short stay in Washington, D.C.

INDIAN VILLAGE

Moving to Lincoln and Indian Village last month were 1st Lt. and Mrs. Jack B. Hall. The Hall couple came to Lincoln from Shreveport, La., where Lt. Hall had been stationed at Barksdale Air

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Skahan are announcing the birth of their son, Scott Eugene, who arrived at St. Elizabeth Hospital on Tuesday, July 15. Scott has two brothers, Larry and Jeffery, and included among his grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Skahan of Leavenworth, Kan., Kermit Voss of Hutchinson, Kan., and Mrs. Jean Jean Voss, also of Hutchinson who is spending the summer in Lincoln as the guest of her son-in-law and daughter.

Arriving at Lincoln General Hospital on Thursday, July 10, was Thomas Arthur Hawkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hawkins.

Tom's paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hawkins of Windom, Minn., and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Markquart of Jackson, Minn., are the maternal grandparents.

Cadillac

Satisfaction Far Beyond its Cost!

One Cadillac owner put it this way—

"I know," he said, "of no other investment a man can make that returns finer dividends than the purchase of a new Cadillac."

Consider, first of all, what a comparatively modest expenditure it requires to own and drive and enjoy the "car of cars" today.

A Cadillac is surprisingly reasonable in original cost — remarkably economical to maintain — and without rival in its resale value.

And then envision, if you will, the personal rewards that accompany this extraordinary practicality.

How wonderful it is to sit in command of a motor car that is so magnificent in performance.

How satisfying it is to be surrounded by its marvelous Fleetwood luxury.

And how inspiring it is to reflect on the car's matchless reputation among the world's motorists.

So if you see a new Cadillac in your future—we urge you to visit your dealer today.

He'll be happy to give you details on all the new Cadillacs—including the Eldorado Brougham.

Red Willow, Furnas County Anglers Have Best Recent Nebraska Fishing

Red Willow and Furnas County anglers have been taking the "big ones" in Nebraska in recent days, according to the weekly fishing report prepared by the Nebraska Game Commission.

Dale Carter and Lawrence Graves, McCook, shared top honors as each landed an 18-pound catfish from the Republican River.

Other good catches included: Bob Williams, Cambridge, 15-pound catfish in Medicine Creek Reservoir; Mrs. B. D. Carter, McCook, 11-pound cat in the Republican River; Owen Hill, McCook, three 3 to 4 1/2-pound catfish and four black bass in sand pits southwest of McCook; and Richard Bramer, also of McCook, 10 1/2-pound catfish in Medicine Creek Reservoir.

Herman Schmidt, conservation officer at McCook, reported catfish, up to five pounds, were hitting well on bank lines in the Republican. Many nice cat were taken in Medicine Creek Reservoir, as well as in waters around the diversion dams at Indianola and Cambridge.

Schmidt said that fishermen who were taking boats into the upper end of Medicine Creek Reservoir were the most successful catfishermen. Wet weather and the muddy roads, he continued, made it all but impossible to get into these waters except by boat. Productive baits included salmonanders for catfish and bass, crayfish for bass, and minnows for bullheads.

Officer Sam Grasmick, reporting for Lincoln County, noted that catfishing remained good at all canals and reservoirs in that area. Drum were good at Maloney and Jeffrey Reservoirs, and particularly good at Maloney Reservoir inlet and the Brady power-house.

Floyd Hicken, landed a 13-pound, 2-ounce drum from Maloney, using worms. Loren Faling, used crayfish to catch a 10-pound, 3-ounce catfish in North Platte canal, and Eddie Moore took a 5-pound, 14-ounce walleye from Maloney on minnows. All are from North Platte.

H. Lee Bowers, conservation officer for Dundey, Chase, and Hayes and Hitchcock Counties, reported success on black bass, crappie, catfish, and bullheads at Swanson and Enders Lakes.

Carp spearing on the flooding Blue Rivers continued fair, according to Roy E. Owen, conservation officer for Thayer, Fillmore, Saline, Gage, and Jefferson Counties. From North Loup, Officer Bill Ahern reported some good catfish on bank and throw line fishing in the North and Middle Loup Rivers.

Pinch-hitter Doug Kiell's single to open the bottom of the 6th ruined a no-hit bid by Matt Sheridan as the big rightlander set down Ben's for a 14-0 Globe victory in the Elks League Tuesday night.

Kiell's single, a sharp bouncer over 2nd base, was the only hit for Ben's as Globe sewed up the contest with 4-run rallies in the 2nd and 4th and a 6-run outburst in the 6th.

Snead Tells Eastern Open Onlookers: I Hate Putters

Baltimore (AP)—Sam Snead popped up Tuesday as a surprise entry in the Eastern Open and reaffirmed his dislike of anyone skillful at tapping a golf ball into the cup.

"I hate all good putters," declared the slammer from White Sulphur Springs, W.Va.

For emphasis, Snead said he whacked a whistling drive off the practice at Mt. Pleasant, Baltimore's municipal course where the $20,000 tournament will be played today through Sunday.

"Like Finsterwald," he grinned as a growing gallery chuckled. Dow Finsterwald, the 28-year-old Ohioan who last Sunday overtook Snead in the last round and won the Professional Golfers Ass'n. championship at Havertown, Pa., will be in this one, too.

Ashburn Gives Pep Talk To Teammates; Wants 1st

Philadelphia (AP)—Richie Ashburn says the Philadelphia Phillies have the strength to win the National League pennant by 5 games.

Ashburn told his teammates enroute home from an exhibition game in Minneapolis against Washington:

"Let's get hold of ourselves. I know we're the best team in this league. We've shown what we can do. Now let's get going and start doing it again."

The speedy outfielder, from Tilden, Neb., tied for 3rd in hitting in the National League with a .327 average, said the Phillies have the pitching and best "bench" in the league.

"There is no reason why we shouldn't win this thing—and I'm not kidding."

Ashburn asserted that pitchers Ray Semproch and Jack Sanford ought to be good for 10 victories each and Robin Roberts, too. "That's 30 victories and I haven't even counted Curt Simmons, Dick Farrell and a couple of others," he said.

As for hitters, Ashburn pointed to Harry Anderson and Eddie Bouchee, a pair of hard hitting lefthanded swingers.

How about yourself, someone asked Richie.

"Oh, I'll get on base once in a while," he said.

The Phillies, 2 1/2 games from 1st place and as high as 3rd 2 weeks ago, dropped 9 of 12 of their just completed road trip and plummeted to within half a game of the cellar, 8 1/2 off the pacesetter San Francisco Giants.

Stan Delaplane's POSTCARD

A gorgeous sunny day in the Carmel Valley of California. Things are looking up.

"We are looking for a new Tarzan of the Apes." That is a letter I get from Hollywood. Have just gone in and flexed my muscles in front of the mirror. Gad-zooks!

"We are looking for a new Tarzan on account of Tarzans wear out very fast," writes Jack Mulcahy.

"What I have in mind is a muscle guy. Only a sort of Marlon Brando of the tree-tops."

OK, I am a muscle guy. Also I can do that "Sayonara" Texas accent, too. I can see myself now. In a leopard skin. "Lion, would y'all move ovuh heah while I tear you to ribbons?"

That should fetch the audiences.

There have been 31 Tarzan pictures. Of which Sol Lesser made 16. Wore out ten Tarzans in the process.

Johnny Weissmuller was the most durable Tarzan. But if you remember, the Tarzan of silent pictures was Elmo Lincoln.

We were all great Tarzan fans and went around practicing "the cry of the great ape who has just made a kill."

Since Elmo Lincoln worked in silent pictures, we had to sort of make up this cry. But we figured it was pretty horrid and scary. It was quite a chore.

At the same time I was practicing how to bark like a fox.

I was a member of a Fox Patrol of the Boy Scouts.

I was also learning to throw my voice—all this at the same time, mind you. There was a little gadget we sent away for. It cost 10 cents.

The ad showed a small boy standing around in a superior manner. Alongside was a man with a trunk on his back. And out of the trunk came a voice: "Let me out! Let me out!"

The small boy was throwing his voice. And the man with the trunk on his back was flabbergasted.

Well, you get a mouthful of gadgets to throw your voice. And bark like a fox. And holler like a great ape, who has just made a kill. You are plenty busy.

My family would hear all these weird noises. They came rushing out.

"What are you doing?" (They never said: "What's the matter?" Only, "What are you doing?" The assumption was you were doing something you shouldn't.)

"What in the world are you doing?" they said.

"Nothing."

We never told grownups anything. Once Tarzan was stacked up with wood like a barbecue. He should tell the natives where the treasure was buried. Or they would fry him like a steak.

Never said a word. Just looked at them scornfully. Then he hollered with a special holler. And his pal, Simba the lion, came loping up. You should have seen those natives take off!

We used to holler like this to get the dog to come loping up. Pretty hard because the dogs we had were already there. When we played Tarzan, you could not get rid of them.

Anyway, if you should wish to be Tarzan, you should send your picture to Sy Weintraub at Sol Lesser Productions, 5842 Sunset Boulevard in Hollywood.

I don't know if you have a chance. Because with all my years of practice, I imagine Sy will have tied me up with a long-term, chest-beating contract.

If I can find my voice-throwing gadget, I may throw my voice a little in the pictures. With a Texas accent. What has Brando got? Can he bark like a fox? Well, I can.

Nebraska Fields Keep Harvesting Operations At Snail's Pace

Heavy rains again bogged down progress of the Nebraska wheat harvest as sodden fields and damp weather kept the combines from operating during most of the past week, state-federal crop statisticians reported Tuesday.

Moisture content of the grain was too high in places where the ground was solid enough for machinery to operate. However, a few favorable days here and there were enough to permit cutting about 20% of the acreage last week, bringing to the total harvested through Saturday

GI Council OKs 3% Franchise Tax On Two Utilities

Grand Island, Neb. (AP)—The Grand Island City Council passed a franchise tax of 3% on the gross income of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. and Northwestern Public Service Co. in Grand Island.

Councilmen estimated the tax will bring in from $45,000 to $50,000 annually. It will be effective Sept. 1.

Councilmen said they also would adopt a similar measure affecting Western Union.

to a little more than half the acreage. For the entire state, harvest this season is running about one week later than usual, but the current season is not as late as it was in 1950 and again in 1951.

Wheat harvest is complete in only a few areas. Southwest Nebraska made good progress last week and the southern Panhandle counties got a start, but some eastern and central counties have made little headway in the last two weeks.

Yield Prospects Bright
Meanwhile, rains caused more lodging and shattering of wheat and quality suffered as well, but yield prospects are still bright if harvest can be completed without further serious loss.

Oats and spring barley harvest was also held up by wet weather. About 25% of the oats were harvested by the end of the week. Nearly all of the crop is ready for cutting, with some lodging from heavy rains and some fields getting weedy.

Prospects for corn and sorghums improved with generous and timely rains, but warm, sunny weather is needed for the best development of these crops. About 10% of the corn has tasselled and much of it is shoulder high. Some fields which missed out on late cultivation are quite weedy.

The second cutting of alfalfa is about one-third finished. Alfalfa benefited from the moisture received, but insects have been damaging the crop.

Near ideal pasture and range conditions continued to promote excellent livestock gains. Cattle feeding is well above last year's low level and shipments of feeder stock have exceeded those of a year earlier. Spring calves, lambs and pigs have put on good to excellent gains.

Rainfall throughout Nebraska during the past week included:

Grand Island	East	1.71

Burwell	1.36 Valentine	.54

Nebraskan Leaving Lebanon; His Family Arrives In N.Y.C.

Holdrege, Neb. (AP)—Robert Bushnell, Holdrege High School and Nebraska Wesleyan graduate and son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bushnell Sr. of Loomis, is about to leave Beirut, Lebanon, to return to the United States. He plans to leave by plane on July 23 or 24, according to his parents.

Bushnell's family has been sent ahead of him and are now in this country. Mrs. Bushnell and one daughter are in New York City awaiting his arrival and the 2 other children are with their grandparents at Loomis.

Bushnell has been living in Lebanon for 6 years, the last 3 of which he has served as general manager of the Middle East Equipment Co. Upon his return to this country he plans to remain here. Bushnell has been a witness to some of the uprisings in Beirut. On one occasion, according to his parents, a bomb was exploded in a car parked across the street from Bushnell's car.

Brownell Denies Special Interest In Onassis Case

Washington (AP)—Former Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell denied that he had any special interest in the Onassis shipping case settled by the government in 1955.

Brownell acknowledged that the New York law firm with which he was connected prior to becoming attorney general in 1953 had done legal services for Onassis interests from time to time in 1948-50.

But, he told a House Merchant Marine subcommittee, which is looking into the matter, he did not participate personally in any of the services and did not know Aristotle S. Onassis, wealthy Greek-born international shipping magnate.

Brownell said the firm Lord, Day and Lord—did not advise the Onassis interests on the maritime applications on which the government's indictment was based.

Rep. Herbert Zelenko (D-NY) said that by sharing in the firm's fees, Brownell had a monetary interest.

GOP Move To Investigate Adams Probers Bogs Down

Washington (AP)—A GOP move to investigate the investigators of Sherman Adams reached the House Rules Committee Tuesday and appeared to be headed for a high back shelf.

Rep. Thomas B. Curtis (R-Mo) contends the House was brought into disrepute by the tactics of a subcommittee which inquired into Adams' relations with Bernard Goldfine, the gift-giving Boston textile millionaire.

Curtis proposed that a special committee be appointed to determine whether the subcommittee on legislative oversight violated any House rules by permitting what he called public defamation of individuals on unsubstantiated hearsay testimony.

Rep. Howard W. Smith (D-Va), chairman of the Democratic-controlled rules group, commented that Curtis was proposing very strange procedure.

"You're proposing here the creation of an investigating committee to investigate an investigating committee," Smith went on. "And if you ever start on that, the Lord only knows where you'll end."

Tossed Out

Newcomerstown, Ohio (AP)—A tornado hurled Kenneth Beaver, 30, from a sick bed in his home to a nearby hillside, breaking his leg and shoulder and scattering his house over a half-mile area.

Beaver, unemployed, was alone in the one-story, prefabricated house which he had built largely by his own efforts when the tornado hit.

His wife was at work and their 10-year-old son was at an uncle's home about a block away.

He is a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

He was an officer in the Navy from June, 1954 to June, 1956, serving aboard the USS Kearsarge in the western Pacific.

Only Son Of McClellan Is Killed

2 OLDER BOYS DIED IN 1940S

Little Rock, Ark. (AP)—James H. McClellan, only surviving son of Sen. John McClellan (D-Ark) was killed with 3 other men in the crash of a twin-engine trainer plane about 25 miles from here Tuesday.

The 31-year-old McClellan, a Little Rock attorney, was getting a check ride in a flying service plane for a multi-engine license.

Sen. McClellan's 2 older sons died in the 1940s. Max died of spinal meningitis in 1943 while serving with the U. S. Army in North Africa and John Jr., was fatally injured in an Arkansas automobile accident in 1949.

John died on the same day, March 12, 1949, that his brother Max's body was reburied in Arkansas after being returned from overseas.

Second Wife Died

McClellan was divorced from his first wife, his 2nd wife died and he now is married to a 3rd. The senator has 2 daughters.

The other victims of Tuesday's crash were Willis Denman Hill, 57, of Fort Worth, Tex., an inspector for the CAA who recently was transferred here; Harold K. Gilbert of Stuttgart, Ark., owner of an insurance and securities agency there; and J. R. Williams, an instructor for the flying service.

Ben Meeks, a farmer in the nearby Mayflower area, said he heard the plane sputter as if its engines were misfiring. Then he saw the plane dive into a cornfield.

Persons at the scene later said it appeared that the pilot was attempting to land the craft on a paved road near the field.

U.S. Economy Is On Way Up

... President's Advisers Report

Washington (AP)—President Eisenhower's economic advisers reported Tuesday the nation's economy has definitely swung upward from its recession low.

They estimated that total output of goods and services in the April-June quarter increased to 428 billion dollars at an annual rate.

This was up from the January-March low of $425,800,000,000 and compared with last summer's peak of $445,600,000,000.

The boost in this broadest of economic indicators, called Gross National Product or GNP, was caused by bigger purchases by individuals and by the federal government.

It was registered despite the fact that businesses continued to eat deeply into their inventories.

In a separate report, the Commerce Department reviewed economic developments in June and reported additional evidence of firmer business conditions.

Appears Halted

The department's survey of current business said the decline in purchases of such consumer durables as autos and appliances appeared to have been substantially halted.

This was seen as a particularly heartening development since sales of durables were hit hardest during the recession slide.

The GNP figures, reported to the Senate-House Economic Committee by Eisenhower's Council of Economic Advisers, showed a further decline in consumer purchases of durables in the second quarter. The drop of 700 million dollars was a far cry, however, from the first quarter slump of more than 3 billion dollars.

Combine Mishap

Hendley, Neb. — Sylvester Hurt of Hendley received a severe and painful injury when his left arm was torn open from the elbow to the wrist in a combine accident.

Gun Causes Injury

Richard Luft, 17, of 6540 Gladstone shot himself in the leg Tuesday afternoon while cleaning his gun, hospital authorities said. He was admitted to the hospital where he was reported "doing fine."

Stocks Rally Late; Turnover Active

New York (AP)—A resilient stock market absorbed some profit taking Tuesday then rallied late in the session to close irregularly higher. Turnover was active.

It was the market's sixth straight daily rise and its fourth successive new peak for 1958. Prices are now at an 11-month high.

Volume was 3,420,000 shares compared with 3,440,000 the previous day, a low that volume topped three million shares.

Once again it was a case of investment money pouring into the market as soon as prices showed signs of weakening, brokers said.

Chemicals, which have been neglected, were prominent in the recovery. Four of them appearing on the list of 15 most active stocks. Steel, some of the oil and aircraft companies remained lower at the close. But selected gainers among the stocks in the railroads, electric utilities, building materials, basic metals and other sectors out of the market ahead on average.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 50 cents to $180.50, its new peak for the year and the highest level since Aug. 9. The industrials rose $1.20 and the rails 20 cents, both to new highs, while the utilities were unchanged.

Of 118 issues traded, 482 rose and 450 fell. There were 115 new highs for the year and no new lows.

Twelve of the 15 most active stocks rose, one fell and two were unchanged.

American Stock Exchange prices were generally higher on volume of 800,000 shares compared with 740,000 Monday.

Nearly All Grains Hit By Setback

Chicago (AP)—Another steep setback hit nearly all grain futures contracts Tuesday on the Board of Trade.

The exceptions were the July contracts of rye and soybeans which were bolstered by strong short-covering.

Trading in all July deliveries expired Tuesday and the scramble by short interests to cover their commitments in those two contracts came in the final few minutes of dealings.

The demand wiped out losses in both commodities while liquidation speeded up and extended losses in almost all other grains.

It was the first time in many months that commitments were so nearly balanced on expiring contracts but most of the evening up took place last week with the landing of the U.S. Marines in Lebanon.

That created the strongest bull market in grain since the Korean conflict and put the brakes on further short-selling until large commitments were squandered off.

With the easing of tension in the Middle East, prices have been settling back and the selling again has been general although the sharpest losses were in the July.

Wheat closed 1/4 cent a bushel lower, July $1.57 1/4; corn 3/4 cent lower, July $1.34 3/4; oats 3/4 cent lower, July $1.04 1/2; rye 3/4 cent lower, July $1.04 1/2; soybeans 1 1/2 cent lower, July $2.29 1/2; 1/2 cent lower, July $2.29 1/2; 1/2 cent lower, July $2.29 1/2.

Costly Offutt Runway, Radar Station Rejected

... By House Appropriations Committee

Washington (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee turned down requests Tuesday for more than $5.5 million asked for a runway extension at Offutt Air Force Base, Omaha, and a new radar station near Hastings, Neb.

The funds were sought by the Air Force in a military construction appropriation bill. The committee approved $41,087,000 for the Lincoln Air Force Base, Lincoln, Neb., where 2 medium bomber wings and associated tankers are stationed.

'Most Costly Ever'

In disallowing the $3,556,000 runway requested for the Omaha base, the committee said it was "certainly among the most costly ever proposed by the Air Force."

The total cost of the 1,000-foot runway extension was placed at $2,523,000, the committee said, making the cost in excess of $2,500 per foot.

"The committee feels that there are existing military installations which can meet the needs of the new mission proposed for this installation without this costly construction," a report accompanying the bill said.

Also turned down was an Air Force request for $2,116,-

000 for a radar facility at Hastings.

The committee said the site for this station has not been selected and questioned the need for several facilities such as family housing.

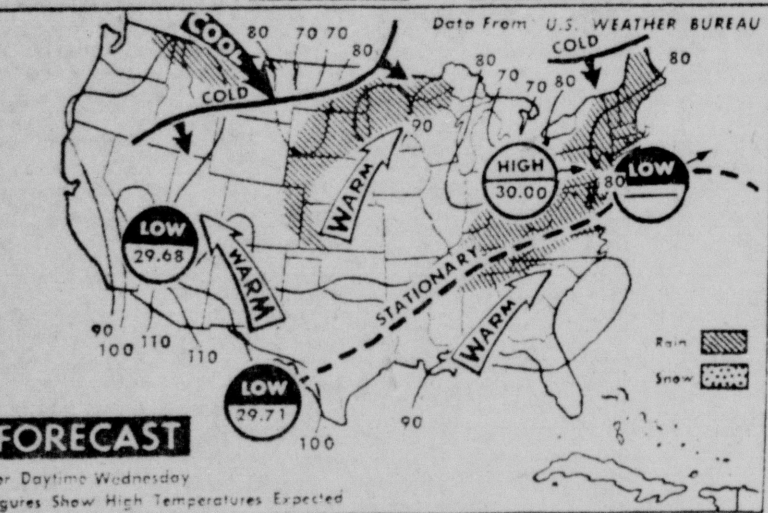

In turning down the request, the committee said it is expected that the Air Force will restudy this estimate pending the selection of a specific site.

The committee also was told the Air Force has acquired no land in the Hastings area for the proposed station but planned on between 30 and 40 acres.

The Air Force said it did not plan to acquire land until a specific site is selected.

Lt. Col. Jack K. Prewitt, director of communications, told the committee that at one time a specific site had been picked out.

"However," he said, "they are building very close to the selected radar site, a series of silos which degrade radar coverage."
